Abolition of dependency as a grounds for deferment from military service moved a step nearer Tuesday when War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. Persons engaged in these 70 occupations, regardless of dependency, will be placed in 1-A unless they obtain work in essential industry.

GENERALS HAVE CHOW ON NEW GUINEA BEACH

SHOWN ENJOYING THEIR BREAKFAST on a New Guinea beach after an exciting night are Maj. Gen. Edwin Forest Harding (left) and Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider. Gen. Harding had to swim a mile to shore after his small boat was dive-bombed and strafed by the Japanese. Luckily, General Harding was not hit.

PRINCESS WINS YANKEE HEARTS

Swish Of Orange Sarong Music To Admirers On Guadalcanal

GUADALCANAL, Jan. 18 — (Delayed) — Dorothy Lamour has been supplanted as the heart throb of the army and marines on Guadalcanal. Their new sweetheart is Princess Patsy Lee, with hair as black as a jungle night and skin the color of coral.

Princess Patsy remained on the island only a short time before being taken away to the welcoming arms of the French Sisters at Espiritu Santa. But while here her cooing words were peremptory commands, the swish of her orange sarong and the music of her voice.

Father Frederick Gehring, formerly of St. John's college in Brooklyn and now one of the most beloved padres in the South Seas, took Princess Patsy away. There was good reason.

The princess was only four years old. She found rugged service food difficult to relish. She refused adamantly to drink from a canteen, pouting and turning her shell like lips to lily cups made from palm fronds.

The princess is Chinese and the cruel sabre wounds she bears through years to come will damn the sadistic cravings of the Japanese. Her parents were killed in a native village inhabited by a few.

QUICK DEFEAT OF AXIS UNLIKELY, CAPITAL WARNS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Highly authoritative sources in Washington today urged caution against too much optimism concerning the prospects of any early defeat of the axis powers.

These sources said a decisive allied victory over the axis either in Europe or the far east is not around the corner by any means.

While the Soviet victories over the German armies in southern Russia are considered the most encouraging developments in the European conflict, Germany is not believed to be on the verge of collapse as a result of them.

On the contrary, Germany is still considered to possess terrific offensive power. The morale of the German forces on fronts other than the Stalingrad battle area appears to remain extremely high. Unless there should be a sudden internal collapse, it is believed that Germany will fight desperately for the rest of this year, at least.

Likewise, authoritative sources feel there is no justification whatever for any belief that Japan has decided to go on the defensive or that it has lost the power to strike devastatingly offensive blows.

ERROL FLYNN'S HEARING ENTERS EPILOGUE STAGE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2—The Errol Flynn trial entered the epilogue stage today as stocky, gray-haired Deputy District Attorney Thomas W. Cochrane opened final arguments with the state's interpretation of three weeks of testimony before the jury of nine women and three men.

As Cochrane launched the final phase of the screen star's trial on the attack charges of two teenage girls—Betty Hansen, 17, and Peggy La Rue Satterlee, 16—it appeared certain that the jury would not begin deliberation before Friday.

Both the state and defense counsels indicated that each would require at least a full day for their respective arguments on Miss Hansen's claim that she was attacked in a film colony home, and the charge of Miss Satterlee that Flynn twice assaulted her aboard his yacht 18 months ago.

SHOT IN BOTH LEGS, BUT STILL BEATS OFF HUNS

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Feb. 2—An American gunner in a bomber crew was credited today with saving his ship from destruction by continuing to fire on a swarm of pursuing enemy fighter planes although wounded in both legs. After breaking up the enemy attack he put out a fire which threatened to spread to a leaking gas tank.

The hero of the narrow escape was the tail gunner, Sgt. Vernon W. Ohland of Spokane, Wash. The B-26 medium bomber was attacked by a formation of Messerschmitts after carrying out an attack on axis shipping in the straits of Sicily.

Co-Pilot Lieut. James W. Barr of Birmingham, Ala., slightly wounded when a cannon shell struck the nose of the plane, gave Ohland emergency treatment and bound his wounds. The ship was hit by at least 12 cannon shells.

Ohland and Barr were not seriously injured and will return to duty after a brief period in a base hospital.

RUM CURE FOR COLD OF JUROR LEADS TO JAIL

CHICAGO, Feb. 2—Michael Busa had a bad cold. That was why, he said, he was drinking liquor during deliberations on a personal injury case in which he was a juror, and that was why he started serving a five-day sentence today. He told Judge John C. Leve.

"I had a cold. It started in my head. It got down to my throat. Then it threatened my lungs. I got scared. I got the liquor as a precaution."

Busa was given the five-day sentence for contempt. The case was declared a mistrial.

ALL-OUT EFFORT URGED BY RICK

Ace Declares Absenteeism Cuts Production By Ten Percent

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2—Capt. E. V. (Eddie) Rickenbacker charged today that the "perpetual slow-down in war industry caused by absenteeism" has cut production ten percent.

Speaking before the Los Angeles Advertising club, Captain Rickenbacker asked all war workers, particularly those in the aircraft industry to cut absenteeism in half.

"It will add sufficient planes and parts to hasten final victory and save the lives of untold thousands of our boys," he said.

"Do not make it necessary to be struck by lightning before understanding your duties to your fellow men and women."

Indifference Hit
"Do not make it possible, through indifference, complacency, selfishness or greed, to have your homes and cities bombed with thousands of men, women and children blown to bits."

Rickenbacker gave a detailed account of his recent tour of the Pacific battlefields, during which his plane made a forced landing at sea and he and his companions floated 21 days on rubber life rafts before being rescued.

"Men and women of America," Rickenbacker said, "if you could (Continued on Page Two)

HEAD INJURIES CAUSE DEATH OF GLENN E. ISAAC

Brain injury suffered Sunday at 8:30 a. m. in an automobile accident on Route 23, just north of Circleville, caused death Monday night in White Cross hospital, Columbus, of Glenn Edgar Isaac, 17, of Kokomo, Ind. Dr. D. V. Courtright, who treated him in Berger hospital, said he suffered a basal skull fracture.

Young Isaac, nephew of Charles Isaac, East Mound street, was driving the car of John Isaac, also of East Mound street, when he lost control of the vehicle. The Chevrolet coach went off the right side of the road, was righted, went off the left side, and then off the right side again. The car was wrecked.

The youth, unconscious, was taken to Berger hospital where he failed to regain consciousness until Sunday night. He was taken to the Columbus hospital Monday where he was placed in charge of a brain specialist. Death came before midnight.

Young Isaac had been working in Columbus, his address being Groveport place. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Isaac, of Kokomo and several brothers were in Circleville Monday.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

TURKEY AGREES TO HELP FROM UNITED NATIONS

Consolidation Of Defensive Security Promised By Churchill

FOR PLEASED BY PACT

Great Quantities Of Arms To Be Sent By U. S. And Britain

LONDON, Feb. 2—A firm basis of friendship and defensive collaboration has now been established between Turkey and the United Nations, Prime Minister Winston Churchill disclosed in a speech at Nicosia, Cyprus, on his return from a surprise conference with President Ismet Inonu, an official announcement said today.

Visiting the heavily garrisoned eastern Mediterranean island on his way home from his secret meeting with Turkey's chief executive, Churchill addressed a gathering of Britons and Cypriotes in the capital of Cyprus and spoke with undisguised satisfaction over the progress of diplomatic and military efforts.

"I have had a most agreeable meeting with President Inonu," he said.

Friendly Relations
"Our relations with the Turks are of a most friendly character. Their views are very much like our own and we intend to help their general defensive security in every way in our power."

After referring to the "very powerful forces" now guarding Cyprus, Churchill said: "Today the United Nations represent the incomparably strongest group of human beings (Continued on Page Two)

SOLONS ANXIOUS FOR SPEECH BY MADAM CHIANG

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—The possibility that Madame Chiang Kai Shek, wife of the Chinese war leader, will speak to congress during her visit to Washington, today is being discussed in official circles.

The enthusiasm with which the congressional suggestion was met was complicated by a precedent that no persons but the heads of governments may speak on the floor of the house or senate. Records show, however, that during war, it is customary to vote for the speaker and informally convene for the occasion.

Sampling of congressional sentiment concerning the extension of the invitation is entirely favorable, it was disclosed. Some members, in order not to run into the difficulties of precedents have suggested that Madame Chiang Kai Shek speak in the caucus room.

The king and queen of England did not speak on the house floor, but in the Cornwalls room to the left of the chamber. The last woman to speak was Queen Wilhelmina.

It is hoped, however, that the leader of the valiant Chinese air force will be able to come to the floor of the house and speak to the members in an informal recess.

SPAIN SHOWING CHANGE TOWARD UNITED NATIONS

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Spain has undergone a general change of feeling since the American occupation of North Africa, Dr. Joseph Schwartz, European chairman of the American Jewish joint distribution committee, revealed today.

Dr. Schwartz, who arrived yesterday from Europe aboard a clipper plane, said that the Spanish authorities had adopted an attitude of tolerance toward refugees from France entering at the rate of between 100 and 150 a day. He added that some have been imprisoned but in no case have any been expelled.

Wouldn't Hitler Like To Know? Joe Says When Quizzed About Shadow

BY WALTER KIERNAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—This was Joe Groundhog's one big day of the year—Groundhog Day—and he was stymied by the war.

Joe rose early and dressed carefully as is his annual custom. At the threshold of his modest pension (French) he halted and turned back. "I'm just wondering what Byron Price would say," he remarked.

"About what?" asked the Missus.

"About me going out and throwing my shadow around—maybe giving weather information to the enemy and that sort of thing."

So they decided that Joe himself would restrict his comments to the press to light banter and chit-chat concealing the real reason for his promenade.

"Anything you write," Joe told the Fourth Estate, "may be picked up by the Fifth Column and transmitted to the Third Reich so you'd better be careful in the first and second places."

The following colloquy then took place:
Q. Will we have six more weeks of Winter?
A. Wouldn't Hitler like to know.

Q. Does Hitler believe in ground-hogs?
A. He's got Goebbels hasn't he? You might throw a little laugh in here boys by saying that Hitler stayed indoors Saturday when the RAF threw a shadow over Berlin.

Q. We don't think they'll laugh.
A. Well, how about this one. . . when Hitler came out and saw his shadow the shadow said "I came here to talk for Joe." Joe Stalin. . . get it?
Q. It shrinks.
A. What do you expect for free? Bob Hope?

Q. All we want to know from you is how long Winter is going to last? Did you or didn't you see your shadow?
A. Boys I'll be truthful with you. I had to come out. . . every February 2 I've got to come out. It gets too stuffy in there. And I knew you'd ask about me seeing my shadow. And I know the government wouldn't want me to tell.

Q. So?
A. So. . . this will kill you. . . I came out, but I closed my eyes. (Note to the desk: This is what comes of trusting me with a groundhog assignment.)

The statement was made by Major George A. Spiegelberg, a member of the staff of lend-lease Administrator Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., as the house committee renewed consideration of a bill to extend the lease for another year.

To keep records of the dollar value of reciprocal lend-lease received from the British would require "approximately half a division of men," Maj. Spiegelberg maintained in his testimony.

Supplies Exchanged
The army officer, who is recorder of the general purchasing board of the U. S. Army in the European theatre, estimated, however, that this country had received 2,717,161 ship tons of materials from Great Britain, while the U. S. was furnishing lend-lease (Continued on Page Two)

COLUMBUS MAY BUY SOUTHERN OHIO ELECTRIC

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 2—A proposal that the city purchase the Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Company, which supplies electricity to Columbus and vicinity was before city council today.

The proposal was advanced by Councilman Arvin J. Alexander and council voted to meet Thursday night to discuss the plan.

It was reported the company was for sale and could be purchased for between $50,000 and $90,000.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Feb. 2—An exceptionally heavy flying fortress bombing attack on the harbor of Tunis and capture of the axis-held town of Sened by United States troops were disclosed in an official communique issued by the North African high command today.

Axis forces still hold the vital Faid pass astride the road to Sfax, the communique said, and efforts by American and British troops to dislodge the enemy in this area thus far have failed.

"Our bombers shot down nine enemy fighters in the Tunis raid, and four of our aircraft are missing," the communique said.

"The Germans are strongly entrenched with heavy formations of infantry and artillery at the western exit of Faid pass as well as the eastern approaches, this assuring them a key of importance in the present stage of the campaign."

"Faid is astride the road to Sfax toward central Tunisia and menaces any flank envelopment through central Tunisia."

"American armored infantry and artillery column attacked the pass again yesterday but made no progress."

BERLIN, Feb. 2—(By Official German wireless)—The German high command admitted today that Soviet troops have breached the last German defenses in the factory district of Stalingrad.

Red army columns were reported closing in on Rostov today after capturing Zernov, 30 miles southeast of the gateway to the Caucasus. Other Soviet forces meantime pressed on the key points of Krasnodar in the north-west Caucasus, and on Kharkov and Kursk in the Ukraine in a series of smashing advances that the enemy appeared helpless to check.

German divisions virtually trapped in the Caucasus were reported near panic and abandoning guns, tanks, trucks and other equipment that hampered retreat. Fall of Rostov and Krasnodar, said military observers, will close all avenues of escape and force the Germans to attempt a Russian "Dunkirk" across the Kerch strait to the Crimea.

Problem For Hitler

As Hitler faced this disastrous military situation on the eastern front and allied forces were fast gathering strength in North Africa for an early show-down campaign, the allies stole another march on the axis in the political war of nerves.

Plans are being worked out by Great Britain and the United States to increase the flow of arms and other war supplies to Turkey, following the surprise visit of Prime Minister Winston Churchill to Ankara.

DEPENDENCY NO LONGER BASIS FOR DEFERMENT

Workers In 70 Occupations Get 60 Days To Enter Essential Industry

(Continued from Page One) forts to recruit 6,400,000 persons this year to meet the labor requirements of war industry and to put 10,000,000 men in uniform.

Workers Needed
McNutt estimated that 3,200,000 workers for war industries could be obtained by transferring them from non-essential jobs. Tuesday's order is the first "mandatory" step. Employees in the 70 non-essential groups, who are of military draft age, may obtain 3-B classifications only if they transfer to one of 35 activities previously listed by the WMC as "essential" to the war effort.

"Dependency is an important factor," McNutt said, "but to justify its acceptance as a ground for deferment, a worker must also be making a contribution on the home front."

The WMC's list of essential activities includes plane and ship production, farming, coal mining, transportation services, lumbering, and communication services. "Necessary men" within these activities are classified 2-A or 2-B, while other employees are rated as 3-B.

Shift Necessary

McNutt has made no secret of the fact that efforts of regional manpower officials to get workers voluntarily to shift from non-essential occupations into positions where they can aid the war effort have not been successful.

"We thought that this action would help them," he commented. He was asked whether the move was designed to get men for the army or for war industries.

"I doubt if you can say that there is any one primary reason for the move," he observed. "There are two or more reasons behind this order."

"Can men over 35 years of age, and thus not subject to military duty, remain in a non-essential job?" he was asked.

"Yes, but that 38-year top limit might be raised by an executive order at any time," he said.

Among other occupations listed as non-essential were:

Beauty operators, bell boys, butlers, dancing teachers, dish washers, elevator operators, elevator starters, fortune tellers and clairvoyants, gardeners, messengers, porters, soda dispensers, ushers, valets and waiters.

Married men with dependents who hold these jobs have until April 1 to obtain "essential" employment or lose their 3-A deferment status. The U. S. Employment Service will aid such persons to find war jobs.

After April 1, a 30-day period for transfer will be granted registrants who have registered with the USES for the purpose of finding a war job and present evidence of such USES registration to their local boards.

All occupations in the following "activities" will be considered non-deferrible:

MANUFACTURING — Chains, cutware, glass novelties, jewelry, non-industrial ornamental gold and silver leaf and silverware, greeting cards and signs and advertising displays.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL TRADE — Antiques, beer, wines and liquors; custom tailors, candy, florists, tobacco.

SERVICE — Automobile rentals, dancing, music and theatrical schools; gambling, interior decorating, parking lots, photographic studios, Turkish baths and social-escort services.

First List Small

"This first list is small, unquestionable," McNutt said. "No one can question that any of these occupations shouldn't be on the list. If any such job-holder is wise, he'll get into one of the 35 essential activities."

Men subject to military call who remain in non-essential occupations will be inducted first, even though they are married and have children, he said. They will be called ahead of married men without children in other jobs.

"The order is a very clear indication that they are no longer in the 3-A pool," he said.

Only reasons that may be accepted for being engaged in a non-deferrible activity after April 1 are sickness, physical disqualifications, reasonable vacation, or some "compelling circumstance" that would not permit a change without "undue hardship."

Chinese settlers. The Japs left the princess for dead. But natives, searching through the ruins of the palm covered huts, discovered the princess and brought her to Father Gehring.

The kind padre made a special trip to Espiritu Santa to escort the princess on her first worldly journey. She captivated the plane crew as she had captivated her Guadalcanal admirers.

Princess Patsy was dressed daintily for the sky voyage into the outer world. Parachutists had seen to that. From a bit of orange parachute cloth they fashioned a sarong fit for Dorothy Lamour in an Easter parade.

Troops Give Necklace

A necklace made from shells picked up along the beach by marines adorned the princess' throat. She wore tiny sandals woven from glove leather and around her regal head she wore an orange turban, also cut from parachute cloth.

Princess Patsy refused emergency rations aboard the plane. But Father Gehring had anticipated her appetite and had brought along boiled rice served in a palm cup. The princess was delighted with both the plane ride and the meal.

Technically, you might say the princess is really not a princess at all. No one will ever know the names of her slain parents. The village had been burned after being ravished by the Japs. Still, it would not be a good idea on Guadalcanal to doubt the princess' right to royal title. These army and marine men can get pretty rough when roused, and they go for the princess in a big way.

Flood of Presents

Almost every outgoing plane carries a present to be delivered to the princess at the French Sisters. Father Gehring had pictures made of his captivating charge before she departed for Guadalcanal. The padre has promised her admirers to see that pictures depicting her growth are made regularly.

Who can tell? The princess may be the queen of the American Legion convention of 1962.

Father Gehring named her Princess Patsy Lee. He lived in China for several years and understands the language. Patsy means small and Lee in Chinese means white flower, or approximately so anyway.

Princess Patsy Lee. Watch for her picture in the rotogravure sections of 1962. By then the princess will be fully in bloom and her injuries fully avenged by her sturdy admirers.

NEW GAS RATION BOOKS MAY BE SENT BY MAIL

New, simplified methods by which Pickaway county motorists may renew supplemental rations for essential driving without appearing before the local War Price and Rationing Board becomes effective February 8.

The board may, J. O. Eagleson, clerk, has been advised, mail renewal applications to holders of 'B', 'C', 'E' and 'R' books before rations expire. On a new form replacing the present renewal certificate the applicant will restate his driving needs for the next period, mail it, together with his tire inspection record, to board headquarters.

The tire inspection record must accompany the application, whether the inspection has been made or not.

NANNIE FOWLER ELUDES POLICE IN WIDE SEARCH

Although expressing belief that Nannie Bates Fowler, 26, wanted in Franklin county for the murder of her husband, Guy, nearly a month ago, has fled Ohio, authorities of Circleville and Pickaway county are continuing to work with Franklin county sheriff's office in hunting the woman.

Hardly a day passes that police and sheriff are not called to run down a clue offered by someone who has seen Mrs. Fowler in either Circleville or the county.

A score of times, Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff said Tuesday, he and his deputies have been called out at any hour of the night by persons who "knows where Nannie Bates is." The sheriff's crew is not passing up any chance to arrest the woman, but no results have been shown yet in the search.

Deputies Frank Martin and Morris Grossman of Columbus are devoting practically all their time to hunting the woman. A shotgun which is said to be the death weapon was borrowed by Mrs. Fowler the day before Christmas from her father, John Bates, of Circleville.

COMPLETION OF TRAINING URGED ON AIR WARDENS

Senior air raid wardens operating under the Circleville Civilian Defense Council met Monday evening to straighten out several important problems, one of which is to have all junior wardens and fire watchers to complete their training at the earliest possible moment.

The session of the senior wardens was conducted in the Cliftona theatre with Richard Williamson, newly-named chief of wardens, in charge.

A night will soon be chosen for fire combat instruction which all junior wardens and fire watchers who have not completed their training will be expected to attend.

All senior wardens discussed the work their junior wardens are doing concerning their areas, and a map prepared by one of the junior wardens and another drawn by a senior warden were shown and examined.

Need for fire watchers and wardens in some parts of the city was expressed and plans for boosting personnel were outlined. Dr. David Goldschmidt, who is in charge of Division 1, which includes York and Hayward streets and Highland avenue, needs volunteers in that area.

Persons wishing to serve in one role or another should contact Mr. Williamson, Sheldon Mader or William Lanman.

Senior warden post signs were distributed, and they will be placed soon. Arm bands for fire watchers and wardens have also been ordered.

Progress on V-cards for homes where residents are cooperating fully with the war effort was also discussed. No V-cards have been issued yet, but they are expected to be issued soon.

lease aid up to December 31. This included 1,121,786 ship tons of munitions, food, and other military supplies and 1,595,375 ship tons of materials used in construction projects to house U. S. troops and build airports for the U. S. army air forces.

The construction program, it was estimated, will cost the British around $560,000,000 when completed.

Items Listed

Aid furnished to U. S. troops in Britain included black-out cloth, coal, concrete mixers, cranes, fire fighting equipment, flame throwers, airplanes, airplane hangars, living huts, railroad equipment, road building machinery, rope, steel, warehouses, wire camouflage, candy, canned heat, clothing of all kinds, food, furniture, lights, paper, printing equipment, soap, tents, towels, photographic supplies, pigeon equipment, radio receivers, bombs and explosives, hand grenades, tank mines, torpedoes, and even British automobiles.

A high point of Major Spiegelberg's testimony came when he revealed that American planes were sent into combat in Northern Africa without the proper kind of radio equipment.

"It was discovered shortly before the African expedition that American planes needed radio equipment for North Africa somewhat different from that being used in the United Kingdom," the officer related. "Pursuant to an emergency request, the RAF turned over to our forces every single piece of radio equipment of the type desired that was then available in the United Kingdom. They stripped themselves in order that our forces might be properly equipped."

Cooperative Spirit

"As important as the material received from the British is the spirit of cooperation which they evidenced," Major Spiegelberg maintained.

He pointed out what he said was a "simple but telling illustration." He said that the British heated the barracks for English soldiers to a temperature of 60 degrees, but readily agreed to heat barracks for U. S. troops to a minimum of 65 degrees at the request of American military authority.

"Similar instances could be multiplied indefinitely," Major Spiegelberg maintained.

Major Spiegelberg also related that Great Britain furnished U. S. troops with large amounts of food although Britain was not self-sufficient in food stuffs. He also declared that the British do not inquire into the need for the articles or services requested by Americans in England.

"The word of the American supply officer signing the requisition is final on that," the officer added.

Troop Equipment

Major Spiegelberg also told how the British helped equip American troops which were sent into North Africa.

"We received, among other things, over 3,800 tons of ammunition, artillery for a U. S. division, 80,000 tons of coal, over 2,000 tons of British rations, a substantial number of medical maintenance units and 30,000 tons of engineering equipment," Major Spiegelberg said.

Major Spiegelberg was called before the committee after Stettinius denied in a hearing last week that the U. S. was shipping beer and other luxury items abroad under the lend lease program. At that time, Stettinius argued that the U. S. was receiving substantial aid from Great Britain in return for lend lease. Spiegelberg, in saying that the U. S. did not attempt to place a dollar value on aid received from England although Stettinius gave the committee the dollar value of lend ever marshalled in arms in the whole history of the world. . . . "They are strong and will march forward until unconditional surrender is extorted from those who have laid the world in havoc and ruins."

Turkey, which forms a strategic buffer for the United Nations between the axis-dominated Balkans and allied forces in the middle east, is now assured of valuable help from Britain and America in building up its defensive security against a possible Nazi attack.

Churchill carried with him to Turkey greetings and a message from President Roosevelt. While still at Adana the Turkish President cabled his thanks to the American leader.

Roosevelt Pleased

President Roosevelt, it was disclosed, warmly welcomed the idea of Churchill's proposed visit to Turkey. An authoritative British spokesman said also that Premier Joseph Stalin of Russia was advised of the British Prime Minister's intention and is being fully informed on the results. No American observers were present but President Roosevelt is to get a fully detailed report on the talks.

Aid For Turks

The changed course of the war and increasing American production, it was pointed out, makes it possible for Britain to supply much more material to Turkey than in the past and will enable implementation of the old Anglo-Turkish treaty.

There was little doubt in the mind of observers that Churchill's talks had very valuable results not only for Turkey but for the allies. Psychologically Churchill chose the exactly opportune moment to make the visit, admittedly at his own request, and the fact that he was accompanied by such an impressive staff, including military advisors, caused tremendous speculation regarding Turkey's part in the forthcoming events in Europe.

Naturally many questions remain unanswered in the minds of observers, including the status of the Dardanelles and Turkish chrome which has been going to Germany.

The first result of the meeting will lead to the sending of great quantities of munitions by the United States and Britain to enable Turkey to resist any attempt at aggression by Germany.

Secondly, it shows that the United Nations will give active help to Turkey if she is attacked.

leas aid given to Britain, declared that dollar values "are totally inadequate as a measure of reciprocal aid actually received."

Since June of 1942, according to Major Spiegelberg, U. S. forces in the United Kingdom has spent only about $1,000,000 for purchases from British commercial sources. He concluded that the amount was "a drop in the bucket compared to the cost of maintaining the American army in the British Isles."

EVERETT SEEDS BOND CHAMPION FOR JANUARY

Everett W. Seeds, cashier of the Citizens bank, Ashville, was named Tuesday by Earl A. Smith, county War Bond chairman, as Pickaway county War Bond Champion for January.

Last month Cecil W. Briggs, New Holland postmaster, won the honor.

"Mr. Seeds has been doing a fine job in the interest of War Bond and Stamp sales," Mr. Smith said. The Ashville banker will receive a certificate from the Ohio War Savings Stamp committee and a Minute Man award from an Ohio gasoline distributor.

A champion, some one who has expended much effort in the interest of bond and stamp sales, is designated each month.

only understand what our boys—your boys and mine—are doing in those hell-holes throughout the Pacific and the burning sands of Africa, that your way of life may be preserved, and the character that has made this nation great may be carried on, you would not worry about eight hours a day, overtime, or double time for Saturdays and holidays.

Gratitude Urged

"You would not worry about whether you were producing too much per man per day. No, you would be and should be grateful for the privilege of offering everything you know how. For none of us is doing so much that we cannot do more. This is a life and death struggle for the welfare of this nation."

Rickenbacker cited specific figures for absenteeism in various aircraft factories on the coast. He said in the Boeing factory alone, 26 percent of the employees were absent the day following Christmas. He said 11,000 employees failed to report at the Douglas plant that same day.

"It is not the loss of individual man-hours that is so deadly," Rickenbacker said, "but the accumulated loss of thousands of hours on the production line which, during the last year, has run well into millions of man-hours."

"Little More Effort"

"A little more effort—a few more hours—a little more sincerity in your endeavor may add the necessary supplies or weapons to save hundreds of thousands of our boys' lives," Rickenbacker continued.

Declaring he was "not a labor hater" and that he believed in "honest labor unions who are doing their darndest to turn out the weapons we need," Rickenbacker said he thought the solution to the man-power "shortage" was employment of older men and middle-aged women.

Rickenbacker suggested that congress provide legislation permitting any man released or discharged from the armed forces to be employed "without having to join any organized labor unions."

He said these discharged men should have equal voting rights with "any other employee in any union, and any employee and management plan of the employer." He recommended the discharged soldiers should be given "seniority" as of the day he enlisted or was inducted into the service.

Chinese settlers. The Japs left the princess for dead. But natives, searching through the ruins of the palm covered huts, discovered the princess and brought her to Father Gehring.

The kind padre made a special trip to Espiritu Santa to escort the princess on her first worldly journey. She captivated the plane crew as she had captivated her Guadalupe admirers.

Princess Patsy was dressed daintily for the sky voyage into the outer world. Parachutists had seen to that. From a bit of orange parachute cloth they fashioned a sarong fit for Dorothy Lamour in an Easter parade.

Troops Give Necklace
A necklace made from shells picked up along the beach by marines adorned the princess' throat.

She wore tiny sandals woven from glove leather and around her regal head she wore an orange turban, also cut from parachute cloth.

Princess Patsy refused emergency ration aboard the plane. But Father Gehring had anticipated her appetite and had brought along boiled rice served in a palm cup. The princess was delighted with both the plane ride and the meal.

Technically, you might say the princess is really not a princess at all. No one will ever know the names of her slain parents. The village had been burned after being ravished by the Japs. Still, it would not be a good idea on Guadalcanal to doubt the princess' right to royal title. These army and marine men can get pretty rough when roused, and they go for the princess in a big way.

Flood of Presents

Almost every outgoing plane carries a present to be delivered to the princess at the French Sisters. Father Gehring had pictures made of her captivating charge before she departed for Guadalcanal. The padre has promised her admirers to see that pictures depicting her growth are made regularly.

Who can tell? The princess may be the queen of the American Legion convention of 1962.

Father Gehring named her Princess Patsy Lee. He lived in China for several years and understands the language. Patsy means small and Lee in Chinese means white flower, or approximately so anyway.

Princess Patsy Lee. Watch for her picture in the rotogravure sections of 1962. By then the princess will be fully in bloom and her injuries fully avenged by her sturdy admirers.

NEW GAS RATION BOOKS MAY BE SENT BY MAIL

New, simplified methods by which Pickaway county motorists may renew supplemental rations for essential driving without appearing before the local War Price and Rationing Board becomes effective February 8.

The board may, J. O. Eagleson, clerk, has been advised, mail renewal applications to holders of 'B', 'C', 'E' and 'R' books before rationing expires. On a new form replacing the present renewal certificate the applicant will restate his driving needs for the next period, mail it, together with his tire inspection record, to board headquarters.

The tire inspection record must accompany the application, whether the inspection has been made or not.

NANNIE FOWLER ELUDES POLICE IN WIDE SEARCH

Although expressing belief that Nannie Bates Fowler, 26, wanted in Franklin county for the murder of her husband, Guy, nearly a month ago, has fled Ohio, authorities of Cincinnati and Pickaway county are continuing to work with Franklin county sheriff's office in hunting the woman.

Hardly a day passes that police and sheriff are not called to run down a clue offered by someone who has seen Mrs. Fowler in either Cincinnati or the county.

A score of times, Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff said Tuesday, he and his deputies have been called out at any hour of the night by persons who "knows where Nannie Bates is." The sheriff's crew is not passing up any chance to arrest the woman, but no results have been shown yet in the search.

Deputies Frank Martin and Morris Grossman of Columbus are devoting practically all their time to hunting the woman. A shotgun which is said to be the death weapon was borrowed by Mrs. Fowler the day before Christmas from her father, John Bates, of Cincinnati.

COMPLETION OF TRAINING URGED ON AIR WARDENS

Senior air raid wardens operating under the Cincinnati Civilian Defense Council met Monday evening to straighten out several important problems, one of which is to have all junior wardens and fire watchers to complete their training at the earliest possible moment.

The session of the senior wardens was conducted in the Cliftona theatre with Richard Williamson, newly-named chief of wardens, in charge.

A night will soon be chosen for fire combat instruction which all junior wardens and fire watchers who have not completed their training will be expected to attend.

All senior wardens discussed the work their junior wardens are doing concerning their areas, and a map prepared by one of the junior wardens and another drawn by a senior warden were shown and examined.

Need for fire watchers and wardens in some parts of the city was expressed and plans for boosting personnel were outlined. Dr. David Goldschmidt, who is in charge of Division 1, which includes York and Hayward streets and Highland avenue, needs volunteers in that area.

Persons wishing to serve in one role or another should contact Mr. Williamson, Sheldon Mader or William Lanman.

Senior warden post signs were distributed, and they will be placed soon. Arm bands for fire watchers and wardens have also been ordered.

Progress on V-cards for homes where residents are cooperating fully with the war effort was also discussed. No V-cards have been issued yet, but they are expected to be issued soon.

SOLONS LEARN OF BRITISH AID

lease aid up to December 31. This included 1,121,786 ship tons of munitions, food, and other military supplies and 1,595,375 ship tons of materials used in construction projects to house U. S. troops and build airports for the U. S. army air forces.

The construction program, it was estimated, will cost the British around $560,000,000 when completed.

Items Listed

Aid furnished to U. S. troops in Britain included black-out cloth, coal, concrete mixers, cranes, fire fighting equipment, flame throwers, airplanes, airplane hangars, living huts, railroad equipment, road building machinery, rope, steel, warehouses, wire camouflage, candy, canned heat, clothing of all kinds, food, furniture, lights, paper, printing equipment, soap, tents, towels, photographic supplies, pigeon equipment, radio receivers, bombs and explosives, hand grenades, tank mines, torpedoes, and even British automobiles.

A high point of Major Spiegelberg's testimony came when he revealed that American planes were sent into combat in Northern Africa without the proper kind of radio equipment.

"It was discovered shortly before the African expedition that American planes needed radio equipment for North Africa some thing different from that being used in the United Kingdom," the officer related. "Pursuant to an emergency request, the RAF turned over to our forces every single piece of radio equipment of the type desired that was then available in the United Kingdom. They stripped themselves in order that our forces might be properly equipped."

Cooperative Spirit

"As important as the material received from the British is the spirit of cooperation which they evidenced," Major Spiegelberg maintained.

He pointed out what he said was a "simple but telling illustration." He said that the British heated the barracks for English soldiers to a temperature of 60 degrees, but readily agreed to heat barracks for U. S. troops to a minimum of 65 degrees at the request of American military authority.

"Similar instances could be multiplied indefinitely," Major Spiegelberg maintained.

Major Spiegelberg also related that Great Britain furnished U. S. troops with large amounts of food although Britain was not self-sufficient in food stuffs. He also declared that the British do not inquire into the need for the articles or services requested by Americans in England.

"The word of the American supply officer signing the requisition is final on that," the officer added.

Troop Equipment

Major Spiegelberg also told how the British helped equip American troops which were sent into North Africa.

"We received, among other things, over 3,800 tons of ammunition, artillery for a U. S. division, 80,000 tons of coal, over 2,000 tons of British rations, a substantial number of medical maintenance units and 30,000 tons of engineering equipment," Major Spiegelberg said.

Major Spiegelberg was called before the committee after Stettinius denied in a hearing last week that the U. S. was shipping beer and other luxury items abroad under the lend lease program. At that time, Stettinius argued that the U. S. was receiving substantial aid from Great Britain in return for lend lease. Spiegelberg, in saying that the U. S. did not attempt to place a dollar value on aid received from England although Stettinius gave the committee the dollar value of lend ever marshalled in arms in the whole history of the world. . . . "They are strong and will march forward until unconditional surrender is extorted from those who have laid the world in havoc and ruins."

Consolidation Of Defensive Security Promised By Churchill

Turkey, which forms a strategic buffer for the United Nations between the axis-dominated Balkans and allied forces in the middle east, is now assured of valuable help from Britain and America in building up its defensive security against a possible Nazi attack.

Churchill carried with him to Turkey greetings and a message from President Roosevelt. While still at Adana the Turkish President cabled his thanks to the American leader.

Roosevelt Pleased
President Roosevelt, it was disclosed, warmly welcomed the idea of Churchill's proposed visit to Turkey. An authoritative British spokesman said also that Premier Joseph Stalin of Russia was advised of the British Prime Minister's intention and is being fully informed on the results. No American observers were present but President Roosevelt is to get a fully detailed report on the talks.

It was explained that Turkish neutrality remains unimpaired by the talks at Adana.

Aid For Turks
The changed course of the war and increasing American production, it was pointed out, makes it possible for Britain to supply much more material to Turkey than in the past and will enable implementation of the old Anglo-Turkish treaty.

There was little doubt in the mind of observers that Churchill's talks had very valuable results not only for Turkey but for the allies. Psychologically Churchill chose the exactly opportune moment to make the visit, admittedly at his own request, and the fact that he was accompanied by such an impressive staff, including military advisors, caused tremendous speculation regarding Turkey's part in the forthcoming events in Europe.

Naturally many questions remain unanswered in the minds of observers, including the status of the Dardanelles and Turkish chrome which has been going to Germany.

The first result of the meeting will lead to the sending of great quantities of munitions by the United States and Britain to enable Turkey to resist any attempt at aggression by Germany.

Secondly, it shows that the United Nations will give active help to Turkey if she is attacked.

Major Spiegelberg also told how the British helped equip American troops which were sent into North Africa.

Since June of 1942, according to Major Spiegelberg, U. S. forces in the United Kingdom has spent only about $1,000,000 for purchases from British commercial sources. He concluded that the amount was "a drop in the bucket compared to the cost of maintaining the American army in the British Isles."

"Mr. Seeds has been doing a fine job in the interest of War Bond and Stamp sales," Mr. Smith said. The Ashville banker will receive a certificate from the Ohio War Savings Stamp committee and a Minute Man award from an Ohio gasoline distributor.

A champion, some one who has expended much effort in the interest of bond and stamp sales, is designated each month.

only understand what our boys—your boys and mine—are doing in those hell-holes throughout the Pacific and the burning sands of Africa, that your way of life may be preserved, and the character that has made this nation great may be carried on, you would not worry about eight hours a day, overtime, or double time for Saturdays and holidays.

Gratitude Urged

"You would not worry about whether you were producing too much per man per day. No, you would be and should be grateful for the privilege of offering everything you know how. For none of us is doing so much that we cannot do more. This is a life and death struggle for the welfare of this nation."

Rickenbacker cited specific figures for absenteeism in various aircraft factories on the coast. He said in the Boeing factory alone, 26 percent of the employees were absent the day following Christmas. He said 11,000 employees failed to report at the Douglas plant that same day.

"It is not the loss of individual man-hours that is so deadly," Rickenbacker said, "but the accumulated loss of thousands of hours on the production line which, during the last year, has run well into millions of man-hours."

"Little More Effort"
A little more effort—a few more hours—a little more sincerity in your endeavor may add the necessary supplies or weapons to save hundreds of thousands of our boys' lives," Rickenbacker continued.

Declaring he was "not a labor hater" and that he believed in "honest labor unions who are doing their damndest to turn out the weapons we need," Rickenbacker said he thought the solution to the man-power "shortage" was employment of older men and middle-aged women.

Rickenbacker suggested that congress provide legislation permitting any man released or discharged from the armed forces to be employed "without having to join any organized labor unions."

He said these discharged men should have equal voting rights with "any other employee in any union, and any employee and management plan of the employer."

He recommended the discharged soldiers should be given "seniority" as of the day he enlisted or was inducted into the service.

County AAA Office Receives More Information On Incentive Program

LIST TO BE INCREASED

Dairy Industry Next In Line For Payments From Government

Pickaway county AAA office received more information Tuesday covering the Food Production Administration's incentive program planned to obtain an increased production of vital war crops.

Last week it was announced that incentive payments would be made for production of potatoes, dry beans and fresh cut crops, but the new program also includes soybeans, peanuts, grain sorghums, flax, sweet potatoes and dried peas.

Incentive payments are being offered to compensate farmers for added costs in achieving increased goals.

Payments announced by Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard for production in excess of 90 percent but not to exceed 110 percent of the farm goal are: soybeans, $15 an acre; peanuts, $30 an acre; flax, $10; dried peas, $15; grain sorghum, $8; sweet potatoes, 50 cents a bushel on normal yield.

Increases Required

National production goals have been increased as follows: soybeans, from 10.5 million to 12 million acres; flax, from five to five and one-half million acres; dried peas, 665 to 725 thousand acres, and grain sorghums, 10 to 12 million acres.

A comparable program is being prepared for increasing milk production. The dairy program is expected to be revealed soon.

Further details of the program to increase the 1943 acreage of designated truck and vegetable crops for fresh consumption were disclosed also to the AAA.

$50 An Acre

Payments will be made at the rate of $50 an acre for each acre on which one or more of the vegetables is planted in excess of 90 percent of the established farm goal up to 110 percent of the goal. In order to qualify for payment, a grower must plant over 90 percent of his farm goal.

As in the case of potato and dry beans the maximum acreage eligible for payment will be 20 percent of the goal, except on farms with goals of less than five acres. On these farms, payment for acreage in excess of 90 percent of the goal will be made on a maximum of one acre in the case of both potatoes and vegetables.

No farm goal of less than three acres will be determined, but any farm for which a goal is not set will be considered, for purposes of computing systems, to have a goal of three acres and thus eligible to earn up to $50.

Individual Goals

Individual farm goals will be determined by community committees as soon as possible.

List of designated crops includes carrots, snap beans, lima beans, tomatoes, cabbage, onions, and green peas when grown for fresh consumption. The 1943 acreage goal for these crops exceeds the 1942 acreage.

In addition, any acreage on which two or more successive crops of fresh vegetables are planted during the designated period will qualify for the production payment, regardless of whether the crops are included in the list.

GAS STATIONS GET NOTICE ON OPENING HOURS

Notice was given to Circleville and Pickaway county service station operators Monday by the Pickaway county rationing office that they must abide by an hour operation program set up by the national OPA.

Under terms of the decree stations must choose one of two schedules; the station must stay open not more than 72 hours a week, and for not more than 12 hours a day, or must stay open 24 hours a day for seven days a week. No station is permitted to sell gasoline after the hour it has posted as its closing hour.

Provisions of the order include: All stations must post opening and closing hours in a conspicuous place.

If a dealer elects to operate for 72 hours a week, he must serve all customers for no more than a total of 12 hours in any one day. The 12 hours may not be divided into units of less than two consecutive hours.

If a dealer elects to remain open 24 hours a day, he must serve all customers for 12 consecutive hours for six days of the week. Only "T" card holders may be served during the remaining periods.

If a dealer elects to operate 72 hours a week, he must maintain this schedule for at least seven consecutive days a week before he may change over the 72 hour a week system.

If a dealer chooses to operate on a 24 hour a day basis he must maintain this schedule for at least 30 consecutive days before he may change to the 72 hours a week system.

The 12 hour a day system is designated to enable the service station operator to reduce operating costs at a time when business has been decreased.

Payments will be made at the rate of $50 an acre for each acre on which one or more of the vegetables is planted in excess of 90 percent of the established farm goal up to 110 percent of the goal. In order to qualify for payment, a grower must plant over 90 percent of his farm goal.

As in the case of potato and dry beans the maximum acreage eligible for payment will be 20 percent of the goal, except on farms with goals of less than five acres. On these farms, payment for acreage in excess of 90 percent of the goal will be made on a maximum of one acre in the case of both potatoes and vegetables.

No farm goal of less than three acres will be determined, but any farm for which a goal is not set will be considered, for purposes of computing systems, to have a goal of three acres and thus eligible to earn up to $50.

Individual Goals

Individual farm goals will be determined by community committees as soon as possible.

List of designated crops includes carrots, snap beans, lima beans, tomatoes, cabbage, onions, and green peas when grown for fresh consumption. The 1943 acreage goal for these crops exceeds the 1942 acreage.

In addition, any acreage on which two or more successive crops of fresh vegetables are planted during the designated period will qualify for the production payment, regardless of whether the crops are included in the list.

GAS STATIONS GET NOTICE ON OPENING HOURS

Notice was given to Circleville and Pickaway county service station operators Monday by the Pickaway county rationing office that they must abide by an hour operation program set up by the national OPA.

Under terms of the decree stations must choose one of two schedules; the station must stay open not more than 72 hours a week, and for not more than 12 hours a day, or must stay open 24 hours a day for seven days a week. No station is permitted to sell gasoline after the hour it has posted as its closing hour.

Provisions of the order include: All stations must post opening and closing hours in a conspicuous place.

If a dealer elects to operate for 72 hours a week, he must serve all customers for no more than a total of 12 hours in any one day. The 12 hours may not be divided into units of less than two consecutive hours.

If a dealer elects to remain open 24 hours a day, he must serve all customers for 12 consecutive hours for six days of the week.

Only "T" card holders may be served during the remaining periods. If a dealer elects to operate 72 hours a week, he must maintain this schedule for at least seven consecutive days a week before he may change over the 72 hour a week system.

If a dealer chooses to operate on a 24 hour a day basis he must maintain this schedule for at least 30 consecutive days before he may change to the 72 hours a week system. The 12 hour a day system is designated to enable the service station operator to reduce operating costs at a time when business has been decreased.

KENNETH ROBBINS TALKS AT KIWANIS MEETING

Mr. Robbins, substituted for Paul Ballard, Jackson county representative in the general assembly, who could not come to Circleville because of Governor Bricker's budget message which was delivered Monday evening. Ballard is chairman of the house finance committee which will handle the budget measure.

The annual achievement report showing the scope of the club's activities during 1942 was submitted to the club. The report was prepared by Herschel Hill and Leonard Snodgrass, president and secretary, respectively, during the last year.

GRAFT IN GERMANY

THERE is a new profession in Germany, the so-called "confidence man." The name does not mean what it does in this country; it indicates a secret agent hired by every firm that can afford to do so. He is hired because of special connections with the Nazi party. His job is to get government orders and advance information, priorities and other special favors. As the smaller firms cannot afford the confidence man's expensive fees, they find themselves losing ground in the business race.

The point is that the confidence man does not operate merely through his expert knowledge of government bureaus, and the way to get round long routines. He bribes and he blackmails. Everywhere in Nazi officialdom is an itching palm.

Under the empire German public servants were perhaps the best in the world. They were efficient and incorruptible. Now things are changed; the efficiency is going, and the integrity has gone completely. We have had things like this, under Tammany and other local rings, but never did graft in America penetrate the whole central government system. To this has Nazism brought Germany.

JOHN BURNS

THE first step is always the most terrifying. When John Burns, former leader of a London dock strike, became in 1905 the first laboring man to enter a British cabinet, a lot of people were horrified. The world must really be on the often announced and seldom realized journey to the dogs. Yet John Burns proved to be a steady, hardworking cabinet member of moderate views and unobtrusive manners. When he resigned in 1914, because he did not believe in war even against the Kaiser's Germany, many who had shuddered at him in 1905 came forward to say, "Too bad he has to go." He has just died, and hardly anyone remembers that he was once thought a peril.

Cases like that of John Burns are good for conservatives to remember. There is so much legitimate cause for worry in this world that it is better not to get wrought up over imaginary perils.

"PLEASE BUY LESS"

A WIDESPREAD chain of candy stores has put signs in its windows, "Please purchase smaller boxes of candy than usual." This, of course, is in order that there may be enough to go around.

It shows how the war is upsetting all the traditions. When before was such a thing ever heard of as business houses asking people not to deal with them?

WORLD AT A GLANCE

WASHINGTON—An army's size can be overdone, according to United States Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama.

Sen. Bankhead

He has quite a bit of sentiment back of him in congress. It may yet develop into a majority.

The idea is that a soldier, in order to fight, must get to the front where the fighting is, and that he is dependent upon a very large number of civilian workers to supply him with military equipment and plenty to eat between battles.

If Johnny Doughboy is so numerous that only a fraction of him can be transported into combat scenery, what remains behind is worse than useless. Idling about in uniform and consuming stuff that is needed by his brethren on the firing line.

Furthermore, if sources of home production are overly depleted, it is downright weakening to the field which cannot wage efficient war without ample quantities of weapons and ammunition, as well as stomachful of just the kind of food that doughboys thrive on.

Now, there is, as a matter of fact, an acute shortage of farm manpower already, and it was to this that Senator Bankhead, as spokesman for a distinctly agricultural state, referred to especially. Other soldiers from the farm belt

Support for Bankhead

Urban industry apparently is not quite as tightly pinched yet as are the rural areas. Nevertheless, there are lawmakers representing city populations who are worried as to the future and the Alabama legislator seems certain of substantial support from them.

Our own troops are not the only ones whose wants are under discussion. Complaints have been coming for some time from both China and Russia that the aid they have received thus far from their associated United Nations has been far short of what they had expected and urgently require to hold their own against Japan and Germany respectively.

Senator Bankhead points out that it is not men that Premier Josef Stalin and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek are appealing for. There is no scarcity of warriors in either country, but arming them is a critical problem.

The Alabama solon advances this proposition:

Due to geographical reasons, it will be very slow work for Uncle Sam to unload any formidable aggregation of men either along the Russo-German frontier or in eastern China. The Russians and Chinese, however, are on the precise spots where the two campaigns are raging. Why doesn't it behoove us to pour equipment into Soviet and Chinese hands?—even if it involves delay in our American program, which can wait a bit?

A Navy is a different matter, which can wait a bit.

CHIANG FACES CRITICISM

WASHINGTON—In the swank new U. S. Public Health Building, now vacated by yellow fever and bubonic plague experts to house the Allied chiefs of staff, is a small office occupied by Maj. Gen. Chu Shik-Ming, Chinese military attache.

It is spick and span, the neatest office in the building. This is partly because it is almost empty. No one comes in, no one goes out. Inside sits a stenographer.

"I am grateful to the United States for giving me this nice office," Gen. Chu confides to friends, "and I also appreciate this nice stenographer. But I don't like to go to my office, for I don't want people to see how little work I have to do."

"At first it embarrassed me to have the stenographer sit there doing nothing. But now I keep her busy clipping newspaper articles about China."

That empty office illustrates what the Chinese call our empty-handed war policy toward China. It also gives one key to the mystery of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's refusal to join the Roosevelt-Churchill conference.

Gen. Chu tells friends that he never expected to sit at the meetings of the top British and American strategists in Washington. But he did expect to participate in the meetings of lesser lights, including conferences to decide on allocation of munitions. However, only door open to the Chinese is the Council of the Pacific, also attended by the Poles and Gen. Giraud's representative, and conducted more or less like a tea-party.

For a long time, domestic political resentment has increased against Chiang Kai-Shek because his policy of U. S. friendship has netted no real return. Recently rumors of these sentiments have grown to an ominous rumble. The powerful governor of Yunnan Province in the South is at odds with Chiang. So is the Governor of Szechwan. In the Northwest, the leader of the Mohammedans is grousing against Chiang's leadership.

They claim he is ruled by his "American" family. They are not impressed with the fact that the Soong sisters were graduated from Wesleyan or Wellesley. They don't care how popular the Soongs are with American public. They only know that the Soongs have failed to produce. The munitions aren't flowing to China.

The Chinese don't realize the difficulties of supplying two vital war fronts—Russia and Africa. They also don't realize that Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, confined to an American hospital, has not been able to see the President. They only know that China has fought nearly six long years with little help in sight. So they take it out on Chiang Kai-Shek, his American-educated wife and her sisters.

Note:—Some high-placed Chinese hint that if Chiang Kai-Shek had left China for the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting, political rivals would have moved into the Generalissimo's place before he got back.

Young Man's Changing Voice Subject of Study

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

MEDICAL science is beginning more and more to investigate the common experiences which have been there all the time but have been considered beneath such a complicated, technical science as medicine. The boy who is changing

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

ing the pitch of his voice from the upper levels to a good, rich baritone often encounters moments when the sound he emits doesn't land just where he anticipates it is going to hit on the scale. This has always been a source of amusement to his companions and elders, but it may be a minor tragedy to him.

So medicine, being the human science which deals with minor and major tragedies, has finally got around to a study of this age-old, common condition.

Adolescence has been called the "fateful passage." It is literally true that many lives are wrecked during that period. An elder, accomplished, teasing brother, who knows all the tricks of the trade, can turn a good boy into what will become in later years a skillful bank robber or a chronic bum, during those formative years.

Usually Last Three Months

The voice changes are the ones which all the world can notice and while usually the agony is over in the course of about three months and the soprano changes to the baritone, in some cases the change begins and then the boy goes back to the voice of childhood.

Dr. James Gannett Greene, of New York, has an explanation for this by saying that some boys are timid about assuming the grown-up masculine role. The state of adulthood, as he sees himself entering it, terrifies him—its responsibilities and its changes.

All of us who are adults, I think, can understand why that should be—that point of view. So this type of boy subconsciously manifests his attitude by clinging to his high, piping, childish treble.

Through constant use of his high voice, he causes a faulty coordination and misdirection of the laryngeal musculature, so that the condition becomes permanent. Dr. Greene recites the case of one man who was 50 years of age and the father of three children who still spoke in a falsetto voice and who, according to his own account, "suffered the tortures of the damned," and shunned all social contacts on that account.

Ways to Help

There is a definite possibility of help in these children. They often understand the situation very well after a few explanations, and cooperate so that they attain a normally pitched voice for their age. In some cases retardation due to poor endocrine function can be corrected by the use of thyroid and pituitary extract.

Certainly all parents and teachers should make a point to have a talk with a boy who does not settle down to a normal voice range for his age by the age of 16. And amputate the humor of the older brother who shrieks, "Oh! knitting needles," or breaks into a mincing walk, or yells, "Hello, Caruso," when the poor kid at that age is trying to control his unruly larynx.

W. L. M.—Is there any cure for acne?

Answer: In the course of time all acne clears up. Most cases can be helped to this favorable result by the use of mildly detergent soap, also by opening the acne pustules and the use of antiseptic lotions.

Where Contentment Lies

SUSAN SHERIDAN

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS
KAT STEVENS, a personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York, feels herself strongly attracted to JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all professional offers. Kay has been very friendly with DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern, since she first started to work there. Her best friend in the city is her cousin,
HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village.

YESTERDAY: As she and David are leaving the Jacksons' home for San Francisco, Kay tells Polly that David has proposed, but that she doesn't know what her answer will be.

CHAPTER TEN

"I HOPE you do decide to marry David," Polly told Kay. "He'd be the right kind of husband. And probably the world's best father, next to Don." She had hit the nail on the head there. The way David got along with Polly's children proved that.

"I've never thought much about having children of my own," Kay admitted.

"There's nothing like it," Polly said wholeheartedly. "They appeal to every instinct that's sound and good. You can't talk much about it. But there's only one lucky thing about the people who don't have any. They don't know what they're missing."

"Come on, Kay. Hurry up," David called out. The bags were stowed neatly in the luggage compartment. Polly kissed David. Don took Kay by surprise by kissing her. And with a final toot of the horn they were off.

Jake hadn't wanted to see Kay that night of Tony's party. He would have fled miles if he had had the faintest inkling that she was going to be there.

At 6 o'clock that Saturday night his phone had rung. He had been at the piano all day, working on a Brahms piano concerto. He never expected to play it with an orchestra, but that wasn't important.

The flaring ring of the telephone irritated his nerves. He had been sweating over a particularly difficult passage and was just beginning to get the feel of it in his fingers. He cursed himself for not having left the receiver off the hook—that's what he usually did. In fact, he cursed himself for having a telephone at all.

He pushed the piano stool back, started to rise and found he had a crick in his back. He had forgotten all about lunch and a gone feeling in his middle reminded him of it now. He tripped over a rug, a scatter rug that had been a present from Het and a constant source of annoyance. He started to curse that and then suddenly it all struck him funny—his back, his hunger, his clumsy feet—and he burst out laughing. Jake stayed angry long.

He picked up the receiver good-naturedly. "Hello," he said, hoping it was someone looking for a little excitement.

"Hello, Jake. It's Pat."

"How's the world treating you?"

"Fine. But I didn't call up just for idle chatter. I have a message for you." She sounded serious.

"What's the matter? Has my insurance policy run out?"

"No, you ninny. Now listen to me. Mr. Everett's just called up. He said he'd be hanged if he'd call you himself. But he wants to warn you that if you don't accept his proposition in the next half hour he's through with you."

"All right. You can report to Mr. Everett that you've carried out your little assignment, and the answer is 'NO.'"

"Just as you say. Now that it's finally settled, I'd like to say that I'm sure you're right." Her voice had a gay, light-hearted quality. It reassured Jake now.

"I feel like some fun. How about trying to dig some up with me?" he asked her.

"Aren't you going to Tony's?"

Jake had forgotten all about it. When he worked hard all day he became so absorbed that his mind was wiped clean as a slate of everything else.

"Yes, I guess so," he told her.

"I'll give you some dinner here and we'll go along together."

"That's a good idea. I'll be seeing you." He had to bathe and change, and he was thirsty and starved. He had no kitchen, just an ice box and an electric grill stuck in the corner behind a curtain. He poured himself a drink, made a sandwich with some cheese he discovered in the ice box. He never knew what he'd find there. Het had a habit of stocking him up once or twice a week. She knew he was too absent-minded ever to do anything as systematic as going to the grocers and buying everything he needed.

His shower was a primitive affair. Jake never knew whether he was going to be scalded or congealed. It made it more interesting. He switched the radio on, added floor orchestra. Then he sang along with the music while he tore off his slacks and dirty shirt, shaved, scrubbed himself clean.

He stepped in.

When he had rubbed himself dry with a coarse, rough turkish towel he began to feel marvelous. He had another drink while he dressed somewhat against his better judgment. But Jake's judgment wasn't a particularly hard taskmaster.

He wouldn't idly if he had a suit that would be in a fit condition to wear. He opened the old-fashioned wardrobe. Two of his suits had just come from the cleaners. He silently thanked Het.

In a few minutes he was ready to leave. He slammed the door shut, forgetting to turn off the radio, which blared loudly the rest of the night. It was generally agreed by Jake's friends that it was as well that he had no neighbors. He walked to Pat's, stopping on the way to get a white carnation for his lapel.

He felt happy, with a strong sense of relief that he was through with mental debates with himself about Mr. Everett's offer. He and Pat had a gay dinner.

But when they reached Tony's all of his elation had died down. He didn't want to see anyone. Above all, he felt that he simply could not play the piano. And he knew everyone would expect him to.

The roof of Tony's apartment house had nothing to recommend it but the fact that it was universally shunned. Which was a definite point in its favor right now with Jake.

"Run along in and I'll join you in a little while," he told Pat at the door.

"What's wrong?" she asked in consternation. "I thought you were all set for a party."

"I want to see if I can find Orson."

"Need any help?" she asked hopefully. "I got A in astronomy."

"Thanks, darling," Tony will be looking for you. You think up some good excuse for me."

"All right. Only don't be too long, please." There was something about Jake that played the dickens with Pat's usually impervious heart.

After about two hours on the roof, Jake thought he had the stellar system pretty well memorized, and felt more like sleep than anything else. He decided to take the back stairs and skip. Pat wouldn't mind. When he came to Tony's kitchen door and peeked in, Het was there alone, and the smell of the bacon cooking was tantalizing. He stepped in.

Today's Horoscope

Avoid contact with a jealous person on your birthday. Keep your emotions in check. Do not cover up a friend's error. Such an act on your part may interfere with the development of that person and prevent correction of the mistake. Don't waste money on trivialities. Culture and refinement interest you deeply, just as your charming manners attract others. Beware of a tendency to talk and dream about things instead of actually doing them. You have fine inherent powers, but they must be fostered by diligent effort and industry.

GRAFT IN GERMANY

THERE is a new profession in Germany, the so-called "confidence man." The name does not mean what it does in this country; it indicates a secret agent hired by every firm that can afford to do so. He is hired because of special connections with the Nazi party. His job is to get government orders and advance information, priorities and other special favors. As the smaller firms cannot afford the confidence man's expensive fees, they find themselves losing ground in the business race.

The point is that the confidence man does not operate merely through his expert knowledge of government bureaus, and the way to get round long routines. He bribes and he blackmails. Everywhere in Nazi officialdom is an itching palm.

Under the empire German public servants were perhaps the best in the world. They were efficient and incorruptible. Now things are changed; the efficiency is going, and the integrity has gone completely. We have had things like this, under Tammany and other local rings, but never did graft in America penetrate the whole central government system. To this has Nazism brought Germany.

JOHN BURNS

THE first step is always the most terrifying. When John Burns, former leader of a London dock strike, became in 1905 the first laboring man to enter a British cabinet, a lot of people were horrified. The world must really be on the often announced and seldom realized journey to the dogs. Yet John Burns proved to be a steady, hardworking cabinet member of moderate views and unobtrusive manners. When he resigned in 1914, because he did not believe in war even against the Kaiser's Germany, many who had shuddered at him in 1905 came forward to say, "Too bad he has to go." He has just died, and hardly anyone remembers that he was once thought a peril.

Cases like that of John Burns are good for conservatives to remember. There is so much legitimate cause for worry in this world that it is better not to get wrought up over imaginary perils.

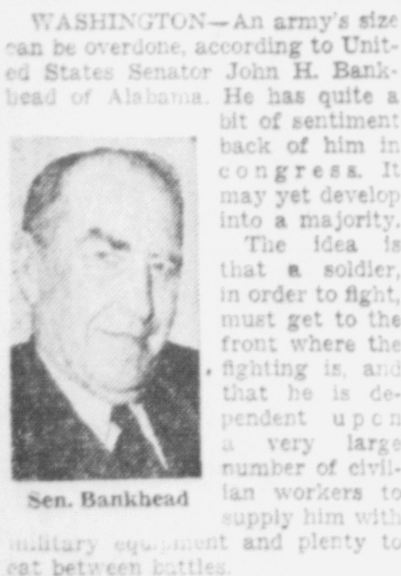

"PLEASE BUY LESS"

A WIDESPREAD chain of candy stores has put signs in its windows, "Please purchase smaller boxes of candy than usual." This, of course, is in order that there may be enough to go around.

It shows how the war is upsetting all the traditions. When before was such a thing ever heard of as business houses asking people not to deal with them?

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Sen. Bankhead

WASHINGTON—An army's size can be overdone, according to United States Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama. He has quite a bit of sentiment back of him in congress. It may yet develop into a majority. The idea is that a soldier, in order to fight, must get to the front where the fighting is, and that he is dependent upon a very large number of civilian workers to supply him with military equipment and plenty to eat between battles.

If Johnny Doughboy is so numerous that only a fraction of him can be transported into combat scenery, what remains behind is worse than useless. Idling about in uniform and consuming stuff that is needed by his brethren on the firing line. Furthermore, if sources of home production are overly depleted, it is downright weakening to the field which cannot wage efficient war without ample quantities of weapons and ammunition, as well as stomachful of just the kind of chow that doughboys thrive on.

Support for Bankhead
Urban industry apparently is not quite as tightly pinched yet as are the rural areas. Nevertheless, there are lawmakers representing city populations who are worried as to the future and the Alabama legislator seems certain of substantial support from them.

Our own troops are not the only ones whose wants are under discussion. Complaints have been coming from some time from both China and Russia that the aid they have received thus far from their associates in United Nations has been far short of what they had expected and urgently require to hold their own against Japan and Germany respectively.

Senator Bankhead points out that it is not men that Premier Josef Stalin and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek are appealing for. There is no scarcity of warriors in either country, but arming them is a critical problem.

The Alabama solon advances this proposition:
Due to geographical reasons, it will be very slow work for Uncle Sam to unload any formidable aggregation of men either along the Russo-German frontier or in eastern China. The Russians and Chinese, however, are on the precise spots where the two campaigns are raging. Why doesn't it behoove us to pour equipment into Soviet and Chinese hands?—even if it involves delay in our American program, which can wait a bit?

CHIANG FACES CRITICISM

WASHINGTON—In the swank new U. S. Public Health Building, now vacated by yellow fever and bubonic plague experts to house the Allied chiefs of staff, is a small office occupied by Maj. Gen. Chu Shik-Ming, Chinese military attache.

It is spick and span, the neatest office in the building. This is partly because it is almost empty. No one comes in, no one goes out. Inside sits a stenographer.

"I am grateful to the United States for giving me this nice office," Gen. Chu confides to friends, "and I also appreciate this nice stenographer. But I don't like to go to my office, for I don't want people to see how little work I have to do."

"At first it embarrassed me to have the stenographer sit there doing nothing. But now I keep her busy clipping newspaper articles about China."

That empty office illustrates what the Chinese call our empty-handed war policy toward China. It also gives one key to the mystery of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's refusal to join the Roosevelt-Churchill conference.

Gen. Chu tells friends that he never expected to sit at the meetings of the top British and American strategists in Washington. But he did expect to participate in the meetings of lesser lights, including conferences to decide on allocation of munitions. However, only door open to the Chinese is the Council of the Pacific, also attended by the Poles and Gen. Giraud's representative, and conducted more or less like a tea-party.

For a long time, domestic political resentment has increased against Chiang Kai-Shek because his policy of U. S. friendship has netted no real return. Recently rumors of these sentiments have grown to an ominous rumble. The powerful governor of Yunnan Province in the South is at odds with Chiang. So is the Governor of Szechwan. In the Northwest, the leader of the Mohammedans is grousing against Chiang's leadership.

They claim he is ruled by his "American" family. They are not impressed with the fact that the Soong sisters were graduated from Wesleyan or Wellesley. They don't care how popular the Soongs are with American public. They only know that the Soongs have failed to produce. The munitions aren't flowing to China.

The Chinese don't realize the difficulties of supplying two vital war fronts—Russia and Africa. They also don't realize that Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, confined to an American hospital, has not been able to see the President. They only know that China has fought nearly six long years with little help in sight. So they take it out on Chiang Kai-Shek, his American-educated wife and her sisters.

Note:—Some high-placed Chinese hint that if Chiang Kai-Shek had left China for the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting, political rivals would have moved into the Generalissimo's place before he got back.

Young Man's Changing Voice Subject of Study

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

MEDICAL science is beginning more and more to investigate the common experiences which have been there all the time but have been considered beneath such a complicated, technical science as medicine. The boy who is changing the pitch of his voice from the upper levels to a good, rich baritone often encounters moments when the sound he emits doesn't land just where he anticipates it is going to hit on the scale. This has always been a source of amusement to his companions and elders, but it may be a minor tragedy to him.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

So medicine, being the human science which deals with minor and major tragedies, has finally got around to a study of this age-old, common condition. Adolescence has been called the "fateful passage." It is literally true that many lives are wrecked during that period. An elder, accomplished, teasing brother, who knows all the tricks of the trade, can turn a good boy into what will become in later years a skillful bank robber or a chronic bum, during those formative years.

Usually Last Three Months

The voice changes are the ones which all the world can notice and while usually the agony is over in the course of about three months and the soprano changes to the baritone, in some cases the change begins and then the boy goes back to the voice of childhood.

Dr. James Gannett Greene, of New York, has an explanation for this by saying that some boys are timid about assuming the grown-up masculine role. The state of adulthood, as he sees himself entering it, terrifies him—its responsibilities and its changes.

All of us who are adults, I think, can understand why that should be—that point of view. So this type of boy subconsciously manifest his attitude by clinging to his high, piping, childish treble.

Through constant use of his high voice, he causes a faulty coordination and misdirection of the laryngeal musculature, so that the condition becomes permanent. Dr. Greene recites the case of one man who was 50 years of age and the father of three children who still spoke in a falsetto voice and who, according to his own account, "suffered the tortures of the damned," and shunned all social contacts on that account.

Ways to Help

There is a definite possibility of help in these children. They often understand the situation very well after a few explanations, and cooperate so that they attain a normally pitched voice for their age. In some cases retardment due to poor endocrine function can be corrected by the use of thyroid and pituitary extract.

Certainly all parents and teachers should make a point to have a talk with a boy who does not settle down to a normal voice range for his age by the age of 16. And amputate the humor of the older brother who shrieks, "Oh! knitting needles," or breaks into a miming walk, or yells, "Hello, Caruso," when the poor kid at last is trying to control his unruly larynx.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. L. M.—Is there any cure for acne?

Answer: In the course of time all acne clears up. Most cases can be helped to this favorable result by the use of mildly detergent soap, also by opening the acne pustules and the use of antiseptic lotions.

SYNOPSIS
KAY STEVENS, personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York, feels herself strongly attracted to JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all professional offers. Kay has been very friendly with DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern, since she first started to work there. Her best friend in the city is her cousin, HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village.

YESTERDAY: As she and David are leaving the Jackson home for San Francisco, Kay tells Polly that David has proposed, but that she doesn't know what her answer will be.

CHAPTER TEN

"I HOPE you do decide to marry David," Polly told Kay. "He'd be the right kind of husband. And probably the world's best father, next to Don." She had hit the nail on the head there. The way David got along with Polly's children proved that.

"I've never thought much about having children of my own," Kay admitted.

"There's nothing like it," Polly said wholeheartedly. "They appeal to every instinct that's sound and good. You can't talk much about it. But there's only one lucky thing about the people who don't have any. They don't know what they're missing."

"Come on, Kay. Hurry up!" David called out. The bags were stowed neatly in the luggage compartment. Polly kissed David. Don took Kay by surprise by kissing her. And with a final toot of the horn they were off.

Jake hadn't wanted to see Kay that night of Tony's party. He would have fled miles if he had had the faintest inkling that she was going to be there.

At 8 o'clock that Saturday night his phone had rung. He had been at the piano all day working on a Brahms piano concerto. He never expected to play it with an orchestra, but that wasn't important.

The flaring ring of the telephone irritated his nerves. He had been sweating over a particularly difficult passage and was just beginning to get the feel of it in his fingers. He cursed himself for not having left the receiver off the hook—that's what he usually did.

In fact, he cursed himself for leaving a telephone at all. He pushed the piano stool back, started to rise and found he had a crick in his back. He had forgotten all about lunch and a gone feeling in his middle reminded him of it now. He tripped over a rug, a scatter rug that had been a present from Het and a constant source of annoyance. He started to curse that and then suddenly it all struck him funny—his back, his hunger, his clumsy feet—and he burst out laughing. Jake stayed angry long.

He picked up the receiver good-naturedly. "Hello," he said, hoping it was someone looking for a little excitement.

"Hello, Jake. It's Pat."

"How's the world treating you?" "Fine. But I didn't call up just for idle chatter. I have a message for you." She sounded serious.

"What's the matter? Has my insurance policy run out?" "No, you silly. Now listen to me. Mr. Everitt's just called up. He said he'd be hanged if he'd call you that if you don't accept his proposition in the next half hour he's through with you."

"All right. You can report to Mr. Everitt that you've carried out your little assignment, and the answer is 'NO.'"

"Just as you say. Now that it's finally settled, I'd like to say that I'm sure you're right." Her voice had a gay, light-hearted quality. It reassured Jake now.

"I feel like some fun. How about trying to tug some up with me?" he asked her.

"Aren't you going to Tony's?" Jake had forgotten all about it. When he worked hard all day he became so absorbed that his mind was wiped clean as a slate of everything else.

"Yes, I guess so," he told her. "I'll give you some dinner here and we'll go along together."

"That's a good idea. I'll be seeing you." He had to bathe and change, and he was thirsty and starved. He had no kitchen, just an ice box and an electric grill stuck in the corner behind a curtain. He poured himself a drink, made a sandwich with some cheese he discovered in the ice box. He never knew what he'd find there. He had a habit of stocking him up once or twice a week. She knew he was too absent-minded ever to do anything as systematic as going to the grocers and buying everything he needed.

His shower was a primitive affair. Jake never knew whether he was going to be scalded or congealed. It made it more interesting. He switched the radio on, added with it until he hit a good dance orchestra. Then he sang along with the music while he tore off his slacks and dirty shirt, shaved, scrubbed himself clean.

After about two hours on the roof, Jake thought he had the stellar system pretty well memorized, and felt more like sleep than anything else. He decided to take the back stairs and skip. Pat wouldn't mind. When he came to Tony's floor he cautiously opened the kitchen door and peeped in. Het was there alone, and the smell of the bacon cooking was tantalizing. He stepped in.

In the Sky

BY THIS time Venus is well established as an evening star, setting over an hour after the sun. The planet is in close conjunction with the moon on Saturday the sixth of February, but unfortunately for the observer, the conjunction occurs at 4:37 a.m. Eastern Standard Time, when the two bodies will not be visible. By evening of the sixth the moon will have moved a considerable distance from the planet.

Mars rises nearly two hours before the sun, but is still not in a very good position for observation, as it is too close to the horizon at the time the sun comes up.

less than 15 degrees above the horizon. Jupiter is brilliant and can be observed all night long. During the entire month the giant planet is retrograding, or apparently moving towards the west.

Saturn, which can be seen in the evening sky, is becoming fainter, noticeably so.

The constellations in which the planets are found at this time are as follows:

Venus in Aquarius; Mars in Sagittarius, Jupiter in Gemini; Saturn in Taurus.

Bazaar To Be Sponsored By Organization

Plans for sponsoring a bazaar were made Monday at the regular session of the Monday club in the club room, Memorial hall. Mrs. Howard Newell Stevenson presided and it was decided to hold the bazaar on Friday, February 25. Both fancywork and food will be sold. Group singing of "America" was included in the ritualistic opening of the club.

The program was then turned over to the History Division, Mrs. John Eschelman, chairman. She presented Miss Elsie Jewell and Miss Carrie Johnson whose discussion subjects were timely, "The Life-Saving Service and the United States Coast Guard," and Miss Johnson using, "Submarines."

Briefly Miss Jewell told of the United States Coast Guard as the nation's maritime police force operating on the high seas and said that its primary function is the promotion of safety at sea. Its activities are spread over 40,000 miles of shore line, using for its motto "Semper Paratus," always ready.

She said that the Coast Guard operates under the Treasury Department but on declaration of war it automatically transfers to the Navy and has its pre-arranged part in all war plans. It had its beginning before the Revolution, when smuggling was profitable as well as patriotic. Once a mere life-saving outfit, the Coast Guard now has the responsibility not only of rescue work, but also for all aids to navigation. The most spectacular activity of the service is its emergency work in the great floods of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. A recent invention is of great aid to shipwrecked persons. A variety of bomb is dropped from a plane and on coming in contact with the water the bomb opens and there is concentrated fire to last until help can come.

Miss Johnson said in opening her talk that the submarine is not a new invention, for they were in use 300 years ago, and the principles on which they operate were discovered about 200 B. C. The modern submarine is so complicated that it takes the crew months of training to become familiar with the many instruments and controls.

She revealed that an average submarine was built in two and one-half years in Navy shipyards or by private industry under Navy contract at a cost of about $4,000,000. The ship is built with ballast tanks which are filled with water when submerged but which contain air as it comes to the surface. She said also that submarines are not heavily armored and that one shot sent through the hull might prove fatal. They are provided with torpedo tubes for attack, but must protect themselves chiefly by submerging.

Miss Johnson mentioned that United States submarines are named after fish and are numbered consecutively. However, in wartime, these numbers are not marked on the ship tower, and the exact number of U. S. submarines is kept secret, as are all details of construction.

She concluded her talk by saying "the submarine is a result of a long and colorful history and has now gained its place as an important instrument of war."

"The Women" Gets Re-Run—On Stage of the 78th Congress

Representative Clare Booth Luce

By MALVINA STEPHENSON
Central Press Correspondent
WASHINGTON—In a real life sequel to "The Women," a lively competition is being staged on Capitol Hill to determine the leading lady of congress.

Blond and beautiful Clare Booth Luce, author of the Broadway satire on her sex, got off to a flashy start, while close on her trail is the light-haired, young Winifred Stanley, the "other" woman among the newcomers to the 78th congress.

True, La Belle Luce is a chic, international sophisticate, but for radiant, feminine charm and a naturally appealing manner, we nominate the gentlewoman from New York, whose descriptive nickname is "Winnie, the Winsome."

As a Broadway playwright and a foreign correspondent, Clare Booth Luce had the world for a stage, but Winifred Stanley did all right by herself operating as assistant district attorney in Erie county, New York. Her A-1 performance also reflected a double share of both beauty and brains. She scored a brilliant record, trying cases in the courtroom and mapping grand strategy.

No Fanfare
Completing her legal education through hard-earned scholarships, Miss Stanley's personal accomplishments early won her recognition and at the age of 28 she became the first woman to rate such a post in one of New York's largest counties. When she resigned to come to congress, she was the only feminine member of a staff of 10.

Without benefit of a celebrity's reputation and the attendant national spotlight, Miss Stanley arrived here quietly with her secretary and shared a taxi to her downtown hotel room. Then the girls frantically searched the city for an inexpensive little apartment where they could occasionally whip up a snack.

In contrast, Clare Booth Luce, returning from a Hollywood movie assignment for Mm. Chiang Kai-shek, kept a crowded platform of reporters and photographers waiting an hour or two. Then she slipped away to a parked car which whisked her to a spacious apartment, leased in advance and attended by her personal maid.

The next morning, the crowd began to gather early at the suite which Freshman Luce managed to wangle in the new House Office building, usually reserved only for congressmen with seniority. Late again, Mrs. Luce, nevertheless, retained her cool poise, while the questions were fired and the cameras flashed.

Winnie, the Winsome, Clare Booth Luce Are Principals

"Please Remove"
Miss Stanley's inconspicuous arrival was barely recorded in the Washington press, and at the end of one report of the Luce interview, this notation was appended: "A few reporters trailed over to the 'old' House Office building. The door of the other woman member was locked. Outside on the floor were two spittoons, nearly covered with floor mats. On the mats was a note, 'Please remove.'"

Again, at the opening session of congress, Mrs. Luce was the center of attraction. In a theatrical manner, the blond playwright entered between two men colleagues after everybody else was seated. Her striking ensemble, a bright purple suit, made her stand out like the star in a show. A turquoise blue ribbon was perched atop her swept-up coiffure.

But don't get the idea that Miss Stanley couldn't hold her own once she got on an equal footing on the floor. When the folk could get their eyes off Mrs. Luce long enough to peer under the gallery tier, they saw seated at the far left edge, an exquisite little miss who resembled a China doll. Her silver platinum hair, lustrous and heavy, was swirled back in soft rolls, but dainty, fresh features put the accent on youth. Her skin was petal-like, and her eyes blue blue.

Named a Teller
She must have made a speedy impression on her male colleagues, because soon they were hovering around, smiling and extending congratulations. Possibly, to even up the score, she was named one of the four tellers to handle the vote for speaker. In this assignment, she conducted herself with grace and dignity, apparently improving the good impression she created at first sight.

Like the freshmen on a college campus, the two "new girls" were easily the early favorites, but the five congresswomen on return engagements held their tongues and took it all calmly. They also probably remember in college days how the "upperclassmen" come back into their own after the initial flurry of excitement.

Based on seniority, the "queen bee" of the feminine bloc is Mary Teresa Norton of New Jersey. New Deal stalwart and the lone Democrat among the house's women members, who was first elected in 1924. Ironically enough, Mary Norton was ill during the opening days, thus making it unanimous for the Republican ladies.

As powerful as her monolithic frame might indicate, Mrs. Norton heads the important labor committee and is the first of her sex to have held a major chairmanship. Through her uncompromising leadership, the New Deal was able to gain passage for its new labor legislation.

WAACS' Mother
Next in point of service is Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican from Massachusetts, who succeeded to the vacancy created by the death of her husband in 1925. Although she has a balanced legislative past, Mrs. Rogers currently is known as the "Mother of the WAACS."

Unwilling merely to rest on her laurels, Mrs. Rogers was quick on the trigger at the opening of the new session to reintroduce her bill to have the WAACS serve "in" instead of "with" the regular army, as is now the case. The soldiers of the last war also look to Mrs. Rogers as a friend, because she worked with the Red Cross overseas and later was the personal representative of three presidents for veterans affairs.

Serving with Mrs. Rogers on the important foreign affairs committee is Frances Payne Bolton, Ohio, trim and dignified, known as the "richest woman in congress." A prodigious worker, nevertheless, Mrs. Bolton still makes heavy personal and financial contributions to nursing and cultural projects, which have long held her interest. Mrs. Bolton has an added personal stake in victory, because two of her sons are serving in the armed forces.

Quiet and gracious, Mrs. Bolton is a favorite among her male colleagues, something on the order of Margaret Chase Smith of Maine. Mrs. Smith, who served as her husband's secretary and right-hand adviser, was considered his logical successor when he died in 1940, and she is steadily gaining ground. Starting out with a minor assignment, she recently drew a spot on the naval affairs committee.

"Blond Bombshell"
Quick-witted, sharp-tongued Jessie Sumner is known as the "blond bombshell from Illinois," possibly because she "pops off" at the most unexpected times. Often she regales her male colleagues with amusing repartee which spices the Congressional Record. She is a member of the house banking and currency committee.

Tampering with another precedent, Freshman Luce made a bid for the important foreign affairs committee, but finally her G. O. P. leaders "settled" for the military affairs committee, also a major assignment. Miss Stanley, while expressing no choice, hoped that her selection would take into consideration her legal background.

On the other side of the Capitol, the Democrats have the only woman senator. She is quiet and unobtrusive Hattie Caraway, who looks like somebody's little Arkansas grandmother. Her political record is unmatched, however, because she is the only woman to have been named United States senator in a regular election to serve a full term.

Among our ladies of congress, there is no outspoken rivalry. In public, they even exchange bouquets and call each other by first names. But when you get a cast of women, operating on the same stage and in "the greatest show on earth," there's bound to be some scene stealing and some smiling for attention.

Monday Club Learns About Armed Services

Bazaar To Be Sponsored By Organization

Plans for sponsoring a bazaar were made Monday at the regular session of the Monday club in the club room, Memorial hall. Mrs. Howard Newell Stevenson presided and it was decided to hold the bazaar on Friday, February 25. Both fancywork and food will be sold. Group singing of "America" was included in the ritualistic opening of the club.

The program was then turned over to the History Division, Mrs. John Eshelman, chairman. She presented Miss Elsie Jewell and Miss Carrie Johnson whose discussion subjects were timely, "The Life-Saving Service and the United States Coast Guard," and Miss Johnson using, "Submarines."

Briefly Miss Jewell told of the United States Coast Guard as the nation's maritime police force operating on the high seas and said that its primary function is the promotion of safety at sea. Its activities are spread over 40,000 miles of shore line, using for its motto "Semper Paratus," always ready.

She said that the Coast Guard operates under the Treasury Department but on declaration of war it automatically transfers to the Navy and has its pre-arranged part in all war plans. It had its beginning before the Revolution, when smuggling was profitable as well as patriotic. Once a mere life-saving outfit, the Coast Guard now has the responsibility not only of rescue work, but also for all aids to navigation. The most spectacular activity of the service is its emergency work in the great floods of the Ohio and Mississippi valley. A recent invention is of great aid to shipwrecked persons. A variety of bomb is dropped from a plane and on coming in contact with the water the bomb opens and there is concentrated heat to last until help can come.

Miss Johnson said in opening her talk that the submarine is not a new invention, for they were in use 300 years ago, and the principles on which they operate were discovered about 200 B. C. The modern submarine is so complicated that it takes the crew months of training to become familiar with the many instruments and controls.

She revealed that an average submarine was built in two and one-half years in Navy shipyards or by private industry under Navy contract at a cost of about $4,000,000. The ship is built with ballast tanks which are filled with water when submerged but which contain air as it comes to the surface. She said also that submarines are not heavily armored and that one shot sent through the hull might prove fatal. They are provided with torpedo tubes for attack, but must protect themselves chiefly by submerging.

Miss Johnson mentioned that United States submarines are named after fish and are numbered consecutively. However, in wartime, these numbers are not marked on the ship tower, and the exact number of U. S. submarines is kept secret, as are all details of construction.

She concluded her talk by saying "the submarine is a result of a long and colorful history and has now gained its place as an important instrument of war."

Would You Hire?

You'd give no consideration at all to a dirty, slovenly cook. In your kitchen, you want absolute cleanliness. And cleanliness depends in large part upon the people who handle your food.

The purity and quality of milk depend, too, to a great extent upon the cleanliness and caution exercised by the people who handle it. That's why we take such pains in our dairy farm and the people who handle every stage of our milk's handling.

FRITZIE ZIVIC AND FRED ALLEN DRILL IN RING

By Lawton Carver
NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Short and sweet: Dependency rapidly is being removed as a cause for deferment from the draft, and this trend in governmental procedure is making the plight of sports more and more insecure. . . athletes haven't been singled out yet, but may be at any time. . . then will go baseball and the few events still on the boards.

In preparation for his bout on Friday night with Beau Jack, Fritz Zivic went through a workout with Fred Allen, the comedian. . . I would like to know what the significance may be, beyond the fact that Allen figured this one out for some free publicity. . . he certainly didn't do Zivic any good as a fighter and I'm sure Zivic didn't do Allen any good as a comedian. . . the last time I looked at Zivic he wasn't anything to laugh at. . . in fact, I thought, he long since had made it unanimous by agreeing that he should retire, as he will have: to do sooner or later because, after all, there is a limit on how old a fighter can be.

The last hard hit of all sports up to now is track and field. . . Saturday night's Millrose games will be strictly up to par all the way. . . a great band of competitors has been brought together for all events, and one of the highlights of the evening will be provided by the pole-vaulting of Cornelius Warmerdam. . . this will be his last meet, however, before he enters the service and several of the others are headed into uniforms.

James J. Johnston insists that if Willie Pep is matched with Beau Jack it will be the toughest fight the latter has engaged in since he hit the big time and Johnston thinks Beau will be whipped.

Pep has won 59 straight, a world's record insofar as anybody has been able to tell, but that's not what Johnston is going by. . . Pep is a smart boxer, with a head feint that ties a guy in knots and he can take a pretty good punch. . . Johnston, and some others, figure Beau won't lay a glove on the featherweight champ all evening. . . I might add one faint note to that by saying that Pep is by far the best fighter pound for pound currently in the business. . . he does a number of things extremely well. . . yet I don't feel too confident he can take Beau Jack. . . there would be a not inconsiderable weight difference, for one thing, and secondly Beau is a pretty fair fighter himself.

BROWNS GET "DAFFY" DEAN FROM SENATORS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—President Clark Griffith of the Washington baseball club today was in the market for a pitcher after selling Paul "Daffy" Dean to the St. Louis Browns for a price estimated at $12,500.

Dean, claimed by Washington in the minor league draft last December, was originally traded to the Browns for Pitcher Elden Auker but President Donald Barnes of the St. Louis club yesterday informed Griffith that Auker has applied for voluntary retirement to continue his work in a defense plant.

With the trade deal thus definitely off Griffith then sold Dean to the Browns and began searching for another hurler.

CAGE CONTESTS SCHEDULED FOR HI GYMNASIUM

A double-header basketball card is scheduled Tuesday beginning at 7:30 p. m. in the high school gymnasium. A challenge game pitting the Stooze club against the Hi-Y will provide the initial contest, with the varsity and Washington township varsity playing a practice game as the nightcap.

Opponent of the Red and Black crew this week will be Washington C. H., the Blue Lions coming here Friday night.

DERRINGER AND NEW BOSS MEET TO TALK TERMS

CHICAGO, Feb. 2—Although Paul Derringer, veteran hurler purchased from Cincinnati last week, came out of his winter hibernation to visit his new boss, Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Chicago Cubs, the matter of the pitcher's 1943 contract still remained a secret today.

After a conference in Cubs' headquarters between Wilson and Derringer, General Manager James T. Gallagher announced: "We are making no announcement concerning any contract affairs. We made none last year and we are even firmer in our conviction now that they are of no legitimate importance to the public."

The only definite announcement made by Gallagher, who previously admitted that Derringer's contract would be discussed, was that the Cubs will open their Spring camp in French Lick, Ind., March 22. The Chicago White Sox will share the spa with the Cubs but have not yet announced the date they will assemble.

Derringer will return to his winter home in Sarasota, Fla., in a few days.

CONNIE MACK TO TRY NEW SALARY SYSTEM

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2—Connie Mack today began mulling 1943 contracts, devoid of all bonus clauses, to the playing members of the Athletics. Baseball's "grand old man" intimated that none of the salaries to be paid exceed the money paid the top-priced player last season.

Because "so much trouble resulted" Mack has decided "to forget about bonus agreements." Last year there were several such contracts, Connie pointed out, "particularly those with Bob Johnson and Dick Siebert."

Johnson, assertedly the highest salaried player on the A's squad last season, has threatened not to play for the A's this year unless he is paid the second bonus under the attendance clause of his 1942 contract. Mack refused to pay Indian Bob because the Athletics didn't reach the 450,000 home attendance the contract stipulated.

"I'm sending Johnson a new contract anyway," Mack said. "He can do what he wants with it, but he won't get any money from me because there is none owed him."

DODGERS MIGHT FINISH BELOW FIRST DIVISION

Acquisition Of Messner Shows Club's Need For Any Ball Player

By Jack Mahon
NEW YORK, Feb. 2—The Brooklyn Dodgers, "if" club of the National league, may have trouble finishing in the first division this season!

A look at the news bulletins from the club's front office and a survey of the personnel problem will prove today that instead of being concerned over dethroning the champion St. Louis Cardinals, the famed "Bums" will have to go all out to finish as good as fourth this year.

This good, old, unvarnished truth ruined the digestion of your correspondent this morning as he contemplated the acquisition of Steve Messner, 25-year-old, perennial "rookie" infielder who will get his first chance with the Dodgers—but fourth try at the big time—this summer.

Messner was acquired on waivers from the Reds, who had drafted him from the Sacramento club of the Pacific coast league with whom he had batted .301 in 1942. Steve, a utility infielder who has played every position but first base, was grabbed as infield insurance after Pee Wee Reese, shortstop, enlisted in the navy last Saturday.

"I talked with Leo Durocher about Messner and he advised me to grab him," said Branch Rickey, club prexy today. "I intend to claim all the players I can on waivers, who can help us in any way."

"I have no idea what our infield set-up will be," he continues. "That is up to Leo. We haven't talked about it yet. There are so many 'ifs,' it is difficult to figure out just who will play where."

Here's Set-Up
Rickey said a mouthful. Here the Dodger set-up at a couple of glances.

First Baseman Dolf Camilli has announced his retirement; Durocher is about to be re-classified in 1-A in St. Louis where he will take his draft board "screen test" this week; Reese is in service; Vaughan will be back. The Brain has Alex Kampouris, who says he intends to retain his job as San Francisco fireman, and Messner reserve.

In the outfield only Joe Medwick of last year's regulars is a certainty. Dixie Walker and Frenchy Bordagaray say they are retiring for the duration and Auggie Gale is a man of mystery. Club officials are sure he is in 1-A and some of them think he may already be in the army. Peter Reiser and Johnny Rizzo are in the service.

Rookie Outfielder Hal Peck bought from Milwaukee, is now in 1-A and Luiz Olmo, another rookie, is down in San Juan, Puerto Rico. The club is O. K. with catchers Mickey Owen and Billy Sullivan and is blessed in only one department. It has a full pitching staff including Whit Wyatt, Curt Davis, Kirby Higbe, Max Macon, Rube Melton, Ed Head, and the unpredictable Bobo Newsum.

Assuming Camilli and Kampouris stick to their guns and Durocher is drafted (Leo will be a regular player if available) Rickey would have to line up Herman at first, Messner at second, Vaughan short and find a third baseman who could be spared by the Ushers or Groundkeepers' Unions.

Joe To Cover All
Medwick certainly would look silly and would probably have difficulty, no matter how hard he "hustled" (as he's promised) covering the three outfield positions. Unless all the retirement boys have a change of heart poor Joe had better order a couple of pair of track shoes!

Rickey said he had planned to leave for California this month to talk to Camilli and Co. but was now at a loss to know just when he could make it.

We wondered if it wouldn't be wisest to get out there and settle the Camilli problem one way or another (we're always wondering about something) before trying to solve things on this end.

"Ordinarily that would be true," sighed the Brain. "Unfortunately I have so many things to worry about now, it isn't true in this case."

Truth—it's wonderful.

FRITZIE ZIVIC AND FRED ALLEN DRILL IN RING

By Lawton Carver
NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Short and sweet: Dependency rapidly is being removed as a cause for deferment from the draft, and this trend in governmental procedure is making the plight of sports more and more insecure. Athletes haven't been singled out yet, but may be at any time. . . then will go baseball and the few events still on the boards.

In preparation for his bout on Friday night with Beau Jack, Fritz Zivic went through a workout with Fred Allen, the comedian. . . I would like to know what the significance may be, beyond the fact that Allen figured this one out for some free publicity. . . he certainly didn't do Zivic any good as a fighter and I'm sure Zivic didn't do Allen any good as a comedian. . . the last time I looked at Zivic he wasn't anything to laugh at. . . in fact, I thought, he long since had made it unanimous by agreeing that he should retire, as he will have to do sooner or later because, after all, there is a limit on how old a fighter can be.

The last hard hit of all sports up to now is track and field. . . Saturday night's Millrose games will be strictly up to par all the way. . . a great band of competitors has been brought together for all events, and one of the highlights of the evening will be provided by the pole-vaulter of Cornelius Warmerdam. . . this will be his last meet, however, before he enters the service and several of the others are headed into uniforms.

James J. Johnston insists that if Willie Pep is matched with Beau Jack it will be the toughest fight the latter has engaged in since he hit the big time and Johnston thinks Beau will be whipped.

Pep has won 59 straight, a world's record insofar as anybody has been able to tell, but that's not what Johnston is going by. . . Pep is a smart boxer, with a head feat that ties a guy in knots and he can take a pretty good punch. . . Johnston, and some others, figure Beau won't lay a glove on the featherweight champ all evening. . . I might add one faint note to that by saying that Pep is by far the best fighter pound for pound currently in the business. . . he does a number of things extremely well.

. . . yet I don't feel too confident he can take Beau Jack. . . there would be a not inconsiderable weight difference, for one thing, and secondly Beau is a pretty fair fighter himself

MATTY'S CATCHER DIES

VALPARAISO, Ind., Feb. 2—Charles Ahrens, 65, who once caught the great Christy Mathewson, former New York Giant pitcher, was dead today. Ahrens and Mathewson were battery mates on an amateur team at Honesdale, Pa., many years ago. Ahrens died in a Valparaiso hospital.

BROWNIES GET "DAFFY" DEAN FROM SENATORS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—President Clark Griffith of the Washington baseball club today was in the market for a pitcher after selling Paul "Daffy" Dean to the St. Louis Browns for a price estimated at $12,500.

Dean, claimed by Washington in the minor league draft last December, was originally traded to the Browns for Pitcher Elden Barnes but President Donald Auker of the St. Louis club yesterday informed Griffith that Auker has applied for voluntary retirement to continue his work in a defense plant.

With the trade deal thus definitely off Griffith then sold Dean to the Browns and began searching for another hurler.

CAGE CONTESTS SCHEDULED FOR HI GYMNASIUM

A double-header basketball card is scheduled Tuesday beginning at 7:30 p. m. in the high school gymnasium. A challenge game pitting the Stooze club against the Hi-Y will provide the initial contest, with the varsity and Washington township varsity playing a practice game as the nightcap.

Opponent of the Red and Black crew this week will be Washington C. H., the Blue Lions coming here Friday night.

DERRINGER AND NEW BOSS MEET TO TALK TERMS

CHICAGO, Feb. 2—Although Paul Derringer, veteran hurler purchased from Cincinnati last week, came out of his winter hibernation to visit his new boss, Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Chicago Cubs, the matter of the pitcher's 1943 contract still remained a secret today.

After a conference in Cubs' headquarters between Wilson and Derringer, General Manager James T. Gallagher announced: "We are making no announcement concerning any contract affairs. We made none last year and we are even firmer in our conviction now that they are of no legitimate importance to the public."

The only definite announcement made by Gallagher, who previously admitted that Derringer's contract would be discussed, was that the Cubs will open their Spring camp in French Lick, Ind., March 22. The Chicago White Sox will share the spa with the Cubs but have not yet announced the date they will assemble.

Derringer will return to his winter home in Sarasota, Fla., in a few days.

CONNIE MACK TO TRY NEW SALARY SYSTEM

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2—Connie Mack today began mailing 1943 contracts, devoid of all bonus clauses, to the playing members of the Athletics. Baseball's "grand old man" intimated that none of the salaries to be paid exceed the money paid the top-priced player last season.

Because "so much trouble resulted" Mack has decided "to forget about bonus agreements." Last year there were several such contracts, Connie pointed out, "particularly those with Bob Johnson and Dick Siebert."

Johnson, assertedly the highest salaried player on the A's squad last season, has threatened not to play for the A's this year unless he is paid the second bonus under the attendance clause of his 1942 contract. Mack refused to pay

Indian Bob because the Athletics didn't reach the 450,000 home attendance the contract stipulated.

"I'm sending Johnson a new contract anyway," Mack said. "He can do what he wants with it, but he won't get any money from me because there is none owed him."

DODGERS MIGHT FINISH BELOW FIRST DIVISION

Acquisition Of Messner Shows Club's Need For Any Ball Player

By Jack Mahon
NEW YORK, Feb. 2—The Brooklyn Dodgers, "if" club of the National league, may have trouble finishing in the first division this season!

A look at the news bulletins from the club's front office and a survey of the personnel problem will prove today that instead of being concerned over dethroning the champion St. Louis Cardinals, the famed "Bums" will have to go all out to finish as good as fourth this year.

This good, old, unvarnished truth ruined the digestion of your correspondent this morning as he contemplated the acquisition of Steve Messner, 25-year-old, perennial "rookie" infielder who will get his first chance with the Dodgers—but fourth try at the big time—this summer.

Messner was acquired on waivers from the Reds, who had drafted him from the Sacramento club of the Pacific coast league with whom he had batted .301 in 1942. Steve, a utility infielder who has played every position but first base, was grabbed as infield insurance after Pee Wee Reese, shortstop, enlisted in the navy last Saturday.

"I talked with Leo Durocher about Messner and he advised me to grab him," said Branch Rickey, club prexy today. "I intend to claim all the players I can on waivers, who can help us in any way."

"I have no idea what our infield set-up will be," he continues. "That is up to Leo. We haven't talked about it yet. There are so many 'ifs' it is difficult to figure out just who will play where."

Here's Set-Up
Rickey said a monthful. Here's the Dodger set-up at a couple of glances.

First Baseman Dolf Camilli has announced his retirement; Durocher is about to be re-classified in 1-A in St. Louis where he will take his draft board "screen test" this week; Reese is in service; Vaughan will be back. The Brain has Alex Kampouris, who says he intends to retain his job as San Francisco fireman, and Messner in reserve.

In the outfield only Joe Medwick of last year's regulars is a certainty. Dixie Walker and Frenchy Bordagaray say they are retiring for the duration and Augie Galan is a man of mystery. Club officials are sure he is in 1-A and some of them think he may already be in the army. Peter Reiser and Johnny Rizzo are in the service.

Rookie Outfielder Hal Peck bought from Milwaukee, is now in 1-A and Luiz Olmo, another rookie, is down in San Juan, Puerto Rico. The club is O. K. with catchers Mickey Owen and Billy Sullivan and is blessed in only one department. It has a full pitching staff including Whit Wyatt, Curt Davis, Kirby Higbe, Max Macon, Rube Melton, Ed Head, and the unpredictable Bobo Newsum.

Assuming Camilli and Kampouris are stick to their guns and Durocher is drafted (Leo will be a regular player if available) Rickey would have to line up Herman at first, Messner at second, Vaughan short and find a third baseman who could be spared by the Ushers or Groundkeepers' Unions.

Joe To Cover All

Medwick certainly would look silly and would probably have difficulty, no matter how hard he "hustled" (as he's promised) covering the three outfield positions. Unless all the retirement boys have a change of heart poor Joe had better order a couple of pair of track shoes!

Rickey said he had planned to leave for California this month to talk to Camilli and Co. but was now at a loss to know just when he could make it.

We wondered if it wouldn't be wisest to get out there and settle the Camilli problem one way or another (we're always wondering about something) before trying to solve things on this end.

"Ordinarily that would be true," sighed the Brain. "Unfortunately I have so many things to worry about now, it isn't true in this case."

Truth—it's wonderful.

BEARD VS. BARK

Al Jolson's favorite story this week concerns bearded Monty Woolley, who is guesting, on Al's CBS show. Seems that George Bernard Shaw, learning that 20th Century Fox planned to cast Woolley as GBS in his film biography, demanded a screening of Woolley's recent movie, "The Pied Piper." Shaw fidgeted through a couple of reels then ordered the screening stopped. "Woolley's not my type," he barked. "He's much too scholarly and pleasant."

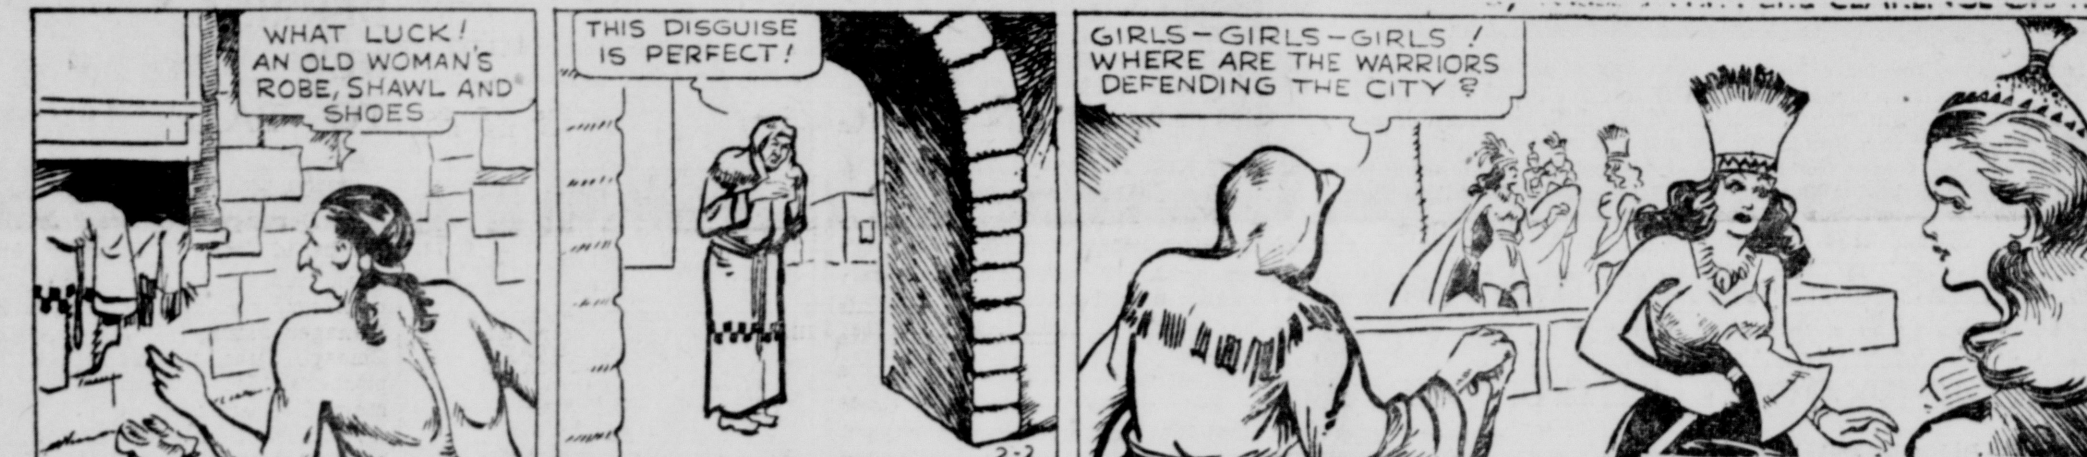

"HOLD BACK THE DAWN"

Re-creating the original role he had on the screen, Charles Boyer stars in "Hold Back the Dawn" via "Screen Guild Players" over CBS Monday, February 8, at 10 p. m., with Susan Hayward and Margaret Lindsay as his leading ladies. Locale for the story is Mexico and the plot weaves around a prim schoolteacher who meets a handsome international crook who is trying to escape deportation.

CANTOR AND MENJOU

According to the script of Eddie Cantor's "Time to Smile" over NBC Wednesday at 9 p. m., there's a nice diplomatic post open abroad. Cantor tries to get it but reckons without his guest artist, Adolph Menjou, who also has his eye on the appointment. While they are wangling the Mad Russian comes along and steals it away from them. KAY KYSER ENTERTAINS

Kay Kyser seldom uses guest entertainers on his program but when he takes his "College of Musical Knowledge" program to Palm Springs, Calif., where he will entertain four divisions of the armed forces on Wednesday at 10 p. m. over NBC he'll have an additional treat with him. The program, observing the start of Kay's sixth year on the air, will feature Sam Hinton, 25 years old, one of America's youngest museum directors and an expert on reptiles. He plays four harmonicas at one time, three whistles simultaneously, harmonica and guitar and hums and whistles at the same time, too. Those to be entertained are the patients at Torney General hospital, Army Air Forces Ferrying Division, 4th Armored Division and the Army Air Force

Transport Detachment.

ABBOTT AND COSTELLO

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, who crossed a slapstick with a box office to produce a gleam in the eye of the Collector of Internal Revenue, bring their popular brand of foolishness to the "Comedy Caravan" on Friday, February 5, at 10 p. m. over CBS. They will join forces with the show's permanent cast, which includes

Herb Shriner, harmonica-playing comic; Lanny Ross, singing master of ceremonies; Georgia Gibbs, vocalist; and Xavier Cugat's orchestra, which introduces a new Latin American composition, "White Sands," on this broadcast. Other musical highlights include, "God's Country," sung by Ross and the chorus; Georgia Gibbs' solo, "Brazil," which was introduced and popularized by Cugat; "Melancholy Baby," Shriner's harmonica solo; "Out of This World," sung by Ross, who gave the song its air premiere, and Cugat's "Etude for Latin," an original treatment in rumba rhythm of Kreutzer's etude, familiar practice piece for beginning violinists.

Georgetown, D. C., was incorporated Dec. 25, 1789, and by the act of incorporation, Robert Peter was made first mayor.

County Red Cross to Conduct Registration of Blood Donors

CHURCH CHOSEN FOR LOCATION OF EQUIPMENT

Methodist Women Making Arrangements For Use Of Building

240 VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Citizens Urged To Visit R. C. Headquarters For Official Listing

Registration of persons willing to donate a pint of blood which will be used to help save lives of American fighting men will be started immediately in Circleville in preparation for the visit of the Columbus Red Cross blood donor center scheduled March 15 and 16.

Hal Dean, appointed by the Pickaway county Red Cross to organize the blood bank program, announced Tuesday that Mrs. Hulse Hays, North Court street, will serve as registrar. Red Cross headquarters in the Wilkes building, West Main street, will be used for the registration, the rooms being open from noon until 5 p. m. each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Early Registration
Persons wishing to donate blood are urged to register at the earliest date possible. Already numerous members of the Kiwanis club and the Junior Chamber of Commerce have signed up for donations. Other civic and fraternal orders are expected to fall in line at once.

The blood donor equipment will be operated in the basement of the First Methodist church the days it is here. Arrangements have been made by Mr. Dean with church officials for use of the basement, which is modern and arranged in a manner which is approved by the Red Cross officials in charge of the blood equipment.

Women Make Plans
Mr. Dean said that Mrs. G. H. Adkins, East Main street, president of the church's Women's Society for Christian Service, will serve as general chairman of arrangements in the church. She will be assisted by numerous women of the church.

Mrs. Raymond Rader and Mrs. G. D. Phillips have been appointed to head a nutrition committee, a kitchen being set up to provide proper nourishment for persons who are giving their blood.

Numerous details must be arranged by the committees in charge prior to the visit of the blood donor center. Need for immediate registration was pointed out by Mr. Dean who said that 240 persons are needed, 120 for each day the mobile unit is in Circleville. Many persons from Ashville, Williamsport, New Holland and other parts of the county are expected to enroll for donations.

Nurses To Aid
On the staff of the mobile unit sent here will be a physician and five registered nurses. Blood collected will be rushed in special refrigerated containers to a laboratory in Indianapolis which processes it into plasma for the army and navy.

Any healthy person between ages of 18 and 60 may enroll as a volunteer. Youths under 21 are required to have their parents sign a release before they are permitted to donate. The procedure requires not more than 45 minutes.

PASTORS URGED TO PLAY MORE ACTIVE WAR ROLE

Circleville and Pickaway county ministers attending the Ohio Pastors' convention in Columbus heard Dr. Lynn H. Hough call for preachers to unloose more severe criticism of the destructive forces prevalent on the world.

The minister, speaking as one of the features of the Monday session, denounced "the watery content of most sermons being preached today in America."

"There are men in the pulpit today," he asserted, "to whom the word 'God' is mere rhetoric instead of a 'splendid reality.' I go to church a lot and I hear sermons whose content is equal parts of tenderness, gentleness and uncritical optimism all served up as the bread of life."

Dr. Hough is head of Drew Theological Seminary at Madison, N. J. Another speaker Monday night was Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor of the Lutheran church of the Reformation in Washington. Highlight of Tuesday's sessions were to be the finals of the "Prince of Peace" declamation contest with six contestants competing for college scholarships and cash prizes.

PRESIDENTS GO PEEP-RIDING WITH TOURING F. D. R.

THE U. S. ARMY'S PEEP already has served for more purposes than any other vehicle of war in history, but it remained for President Roosevelt to employ it as the setting for international conferences. He rode in one to inspect American troops in French Morocco. Then when he visited President Edwin Barclay in Liberia, the chief executives of the United States and the Negro republic greeted each other in a peep, lower photo. Flying back across the Atlantic, President Roosevelt went peep-riding again—this time in Brazil with President Getulio Vargas, top. Presidents F. D. R. and Vargas and their aides are enjoying a hearty laugh.

EXPERTS OFFER FREE HELP ON TELL JAYCEES INCOME REPORT ABOUT AIRPORT

More Circleville and Pickaway county residents were urged Tuesday to appear at the postoffice this week to receive free assistance in filling out income tax papers or to obtain answers to questions which may be bothering them.

C. L. Rohr and A. R. Rosemeier, both of the Columbus office of the collector of internal revenue, have been assigned to Circleville for the entire week to help countians who need aid in preparing reports. Several persons appeared at the postoffice Monday, but the tax experts feel that many other persons, some of them filling tax papers for the first time, need aid.

Persons required to file income tax returns are single individuals whose gross income in 1942 was $500 or more and married persons whose gross income was $1,200 or more. Many persons filing returns this year will not have to pay tax. The deadline for filing is March 15.

A supply of long and short form return blanks is available at the postoffice, but persons who filed returns last year have been receiving their forms through the mails from the government and others who filed previously will continue to receive them for at least another week.

Because of the large number of persons expected to file returns, the tax experts urge that individuals have all necessary statistics and data prepared when they go to the deputy collectors' office.

Farmers were advised that no aid will be given in filling out their returns unless they have prepared their farm schedules before appearing at the postoffice. The collector cannot compute the tax or fill out returns without having all the necessary information required in the forms.

Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce is planning an important meeting next Tuesday evening, February 9, in Pickaway Arms when Lieutenant Joseph Schroeder, public relations director at Lockbourne army air base, appears as speaker.

Lieutenant Schroeder is expected to outline the role the Lockbourne base plays in Uncle Sam's war effort, explaining the work done there and the training program being engaged in.

Jaycees are issuing invitation to members of other Circleville civic organizations, reservations being necessary before the end of this week.

James E. Yost, president of the Jaycee unit, said Tuesday that he has been informed that there are half a dozen or more former Junior Chamber of Commerce members from other parts of the country in training at Lockbourne, and they, too, are being invited as guests.

The meeting promises to be an outstanding one.

day and left the War Production Board, friends recalled a significant incident which took place some weeks before—and wondered if there was a connection.

Ferdinand Eberstadt, WPB vice chairman, had called a staff meeting. Eberstadt arrived half an hour late to his own meeting, and, without taking a seat, announced that he was just back from New York, where he had discussed the WPB "controlled materials plan" with the National Association of Manufacturers, and was happy to report that they heartily approved it.

That was all. Still standing, Eberstadt asked if there were any questions. Kanzler got up and said he wanted to ask a question on another subject—Eberstadt's recent order that an executive of every company doing big business with WPB should be brought to Washington and kept here on tap.

"I assume," said Kanzler, who is President of Ford's Universal Credit Corporation, "that you have in mind not a clerk or a public relations man, but a responsible executive of the company?"

"You are correct," Eberstadt said briskly.

"Then I am obliged to take issue with you," said Kanzler. "This is hardly an efficient way to use the time of responsible officials—to require them to hang around Washington because we might want them one day in five."

Curtly Eberstadt responded, "I didn't ask for criticisms of that order. I enunciated it, and I expect it to be followed. Are there other questions?"

There were none, and the meeting adjourned. Shortly thereafter Kanzler resigned.

Note: Though Eberstadt has stepped on official toes, he is generally given credit for speeding up the WPB.

NEW TOMMY CORCORAN

No announcement has been made yet, but the President has a new "Tommy Corcoran"—astute young Joe Casey, ex-Congressman from Massachusetts. Make a note of him. He will play an important role backstage around Congress.

But where Tommy the Cork and Ben Cohen frequently rubbed Congress the wrong way, Casey's No. 1 job is to promote White House-Congressional harmony.

Casey is also making some Q.T. surveys for the President. One of them is to see whether members of the War Production Board are deliberately slanting their actions to smear the New Deal.

Another Q. T. probe is of Elmer Davis's Office of War Information. Casey believes that shrewd, public-minded Davis could be of great value to the Administration if asked to pass on more Government moves in order to gauge their effect upon public opinion. Casey, therefore, may recommend that FDR submit all directives and executive orders to Davis before release to the public.

On the Congressional front Casey plans more visits to the White House by bi-partisan groups, which may be able to give FDR better advice than Harry Hopkins.

Note: So far Casey has refused to accept any salary, but is

EMMETT DADE 7,500 STUDENTS ACCEPTED FOR ARE TO REMAIN WAR TRAINING AT OHIO STATE

Emmett Dade, 220 East Corwin street, former Circleville high school athlete, has been accepted by the National Youth Administration for war production training at the resident center for Negro youths on the campus of Wilberforce university. He will leave for the school Wednesday, his training to be in the welding shop.

Under the NYA the Wilberforce center is made up of young Negro boys and girls between the ages of 16 and 25. They receive board, room, medical and dental care, transportation to and from the center and $10.80 in pay each month.

Length of the training period depends on each individual and as soon as his work is adjudged satisfactory each is recommended for private employment or civil service appointment at Patterson field, Fairfield, at base pay of $1,500 a year.

Other Circleville youths in training at Wilberforce are Donald Cooper, 361 East Union street, and Julius Nash, 403 South Pickaway street.

Information concerning the school and others operated by NYA may be obtained from Miss Catherine Weiss who appears at the U. S. Employment Service office each Monday from 10:30 a. m. to noon, or at her address, 270 Greenlawn avenue, Columbus.

slated for a post in Jimmy Byrnes' Office of Economic Stabilization.

Numerous Pickaway county men students at Ohio State university may be called to the military service after the current quarter, but those who remain will still have plenty of company.

Junior Dean Charles Wells Reeder, military service representative on the campus, predicts a student body of about 7,500 for the Spring quarter starting March 30.

Emphasizing that military withdrawals in the next three months will still leave Ohio State with a large student body, Dean Reeder answers the question "who will be left" in this way:

1. The women will be left. They started the year with 3487 and the group is subject only to the usual causes for withdrawing. New programs of war courses and adjustments are being made for them.

2. The Naval Reserve, totaling 240 students, will remain in school.

3. The Army Air Corps Reserve, with 296 men, will remain.

4. Professional schools will continue with full enrollments totaling 808 — of which 291 are in medicine, 257 in dentistry, 260 in veterinary medicine.

5. Pre-professional students, numbering 800, will continue until June.

6. The engineering college will not be affected much for the Spring quarter. Most of its 1500 students will remain.

7. Draft deferments by Selective Service boards will affect some students, the exact number of which cannot be determined.

Full effect of the calls to military service will not be seen on enrollment until the beginning of the next Summer quarter, Dean Reeder said.

County Red Cross to Conduct Registration of Blood Donors

CHURCH CHOSEN FOR LOCATION OF EQUIPMENT

Methodist Women Making Arrangements For Use Of Building

240 VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Citizens Urged To Visit R. C. Headquarters For Official Listing

Registration of persons willing to donate a pint of blood which will be used to help save lives of American fighting men will be started immediately in Circleville in preparation for the visit of the Columbus Red Cross blood donor center scheduled March 15 and 16.

Hal Dean, appointed by the Pickaway county Red Cross to organize the blood bank program, announced Tuesday that Mrs. Hulce Hays, North Court street, will serve as registrar. Red Cross headquarters in the Wilkes building, West Main street, will be used for the registration, the rooms being open from noon until 5 p. m. each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Early Registration

Persons wishing to donate blood are urged to register at the earliest date possible. Already numerous members of the Kiwanis club and the Junior Chamber of Commerce have signed up for donations. Other civic and fraternal orders are expected to fall in line at once.

The blood donor equipment will be operated in the basement of the First Methodist church the days it is here. Arrangements have been made by Mr. Dean with church officials for use of the basement, which is modern and arranged in a manner which is approved by the Red Cross officials in charge of the blood equipment.

Women Make Plans

Mr. Dean said that Mrs. G. H. Adkins, East Main street, president of the church's Women's Society for Christian Service, will serve as general chairman of arrangements in the church. She will be assisted by numerous women of the church.

Mrs. Raymond Rader and Mrs. G. D. Phillips have been appointed to head a nutrition committee, a kitchen being set up to provide proper nourishment for persons who are giving their blood.

Numerous details must be arranged by the committees in charge prior to the visit of the blood donation outfit.

Need for immediate registration was pointed out by Mr. Dean who said that 240 persons are needed, 120 for each day the mobile unit is in Circleville. Many persons from Ashville, Williamsport, New Holland and other parts of the county are expected to enroll for donations.

Nurses To Aid

On the staff of the mobile unit sent here will be a physician and five registered nurses. Blood collected will be rushed in special refrigerated containers to a laboratory in Indianapolis which processes it into plasma for the army and navy.

Any healthy person between ages of 18 and 60 may enroll as a volunteer. Youths under 21 are required to have their parents sign a release before they are permitted to donate. The procedure requires not more than 45 minutes.
